

26 September 1997

The Hon Richard Alston MP
Minister for Communications and the Arts
Parliament House
Canberra ACT 2600

Dear Minister

I have pleasure in presenting to you, under Section 38 of the Australia Council Act 1975, the Annual Report for the Council for 1996-97.

Millions of Australians have daily contact with the arts, participating either as practitioners or as audiences. The contribution of the arts to our intellectual and cultural life, to our leisure time and, indeed, to our economy and international profile, continues to be increasingly evident throughout the Australian community.

For the year in review, the Australia Council was chaired by Hilary McPhee, who concluded her term on 30 June 1997. I would like to pay tribute to Ms McPhee for her enormous contribution to Council during a period of considerable organisational change. Her tenacity, vision and ability to work with all sides of the political spectrum have left the Council well placed to respond to future challenges and opportunities.

The development of Australia's first National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Policy and its endorsement by Council in May 1997 was a particular highlight of Ms McPhee's term as Chair. The Policy maps a coherent plan for arts development, regional cultural development, intellectual property and moral rights, as well as increased exposure of Indigenous arts in regional, national and international markets.

The year in review is the first full year the Council has been operating within the new structure. Refinements will continue as the Council strives to be ever more responsive to the needs of artists and the wider community.

In 1996-97 the Council directly assisted 599 individual artists and 1,079 organisations. With half a million Australians receiving some income from arts related work and 40,000 working as practising professional artists, we will always face a gap between the number of talented artists and the funds available to assist them. The Council's encouragement of indirect support for the arts through the Audience Development and Advocacy Division is therefore a high priority.

Council research has demonstrated the need to encourage Australia's corporate sector to provide more support for the arts. Sponsorship and philanthropy from the private sector should be seen, however, as a supplement to, not a substitute for, government arts funding. Government, at all levels, will continue to have a central role to play in supporting Australia's established and emerging artists.

Considerable achievements have been made in strengthening links with State and Territory Governments and arts funding bodies and the Council will build on this work in order to maximise opportunities for the arts sector and minimise overlaps.

The Council acknowledges the continued support of the Federal Government for the Australia Council and for the arts generally, and in particular the four new initiatives announced in the 1996 Budget: Regional Arts, Emerging Artists, Major Festivals and Contemporary Music Export Development.

Australia's arts and its artists are central to our sense of national identity and the way we are perceived by the rest of the world.

Your support enables the Australia Council to fulfil its charter to promote the arts and creative work in order to stimulate and enrich the cultural life of the nation.

I look forward to working with you to meet the challenges of the year ahead.

Yours sincerely

Dr Margaret Seares
Chair of Council

The Australia Council is a Commonwealth statutory authority created under the Australia Council Act 1975.

Section 5 of the Act defines the functions of the Council as:

- (a) to formulate and carry out policies designed:
 - (i) to promote excellence in the arts;
 - (ii) to provide, and encourage provision of, opportunities for persons to practise the arts;
 - (iii) to promote the appreciation, understanding and enjoyment of the arts;
 - (iv) to promote the general application of the arts in the community;
 - (v) to foster the expression of a national identity by means of the arts;
 - (vi) to uphold and promote the rights of persons to freedom in the practice of the arts;
 - (vii) to promote the knowledge and appreciation of Australian arts by persons in other countries;
 - (viii) to promote incentives for, and recognition of, achievement in the practice of the arts;
 - (ix) to encourage the support of the arts by the States, local governing bodies and other persons and organisations;
- (b) to furnish advice to the Government of the Commonwealth either of its own motion or upon request made to it by the Minister, on matters connected with the promotion of the arts or otherwise related to the performance of its functions; and
- (c) to do anything incidental or conducive to the performance of any of the foregoing functions.

The Australia Council is the Federal Government's arts funding and advisory body. Its vision is to enrich the life of the nation by supporting and promoting the arts.

Australia is a culturally rich nation and artists are central to our sense of national identity and the way we are perceived by the world. The Australia Council fulfils a crucial role in supporting Australian artists and arts organisations to pursue artistic excellence, to create and present their work, to take advantage of opportunities to improve and develop their skills, and to tour and promote their work to wider audiences. It directly supports young, emerging, developing and established artists through a range of grant programs offered across all artforms, and it encourages arts and non-arts organisations to support and present artists' work, thereby expanding employment opportunities for all artists.

The Council has a unique responsibility to reflect Australia's evolving national identity to its citizens and to the world. The Council's national focus reflects the culture and creativity of both regional and urban communities, and it has a statutory obligation to ensure access to, and participation in, the arts by all Australians. The arts of Aboriginal people and Torres Strait Islanders are valued and supported; and communities across Australia are enriched by opportunities to incorporate the arts in local cultural life. The Council also maintains and develops cooperative arrangements with State and Territory arts funding authorities, local governments, and key international agencies in all its activities.

The Australia Council was formed as an interim Council in 1973 and was given statutory authority by the Australia Council Act 1975. It replaced an earlier, non-statutory body called the Australian Council for the Arts which was established in 1968 as a division of the Prime Minister's Department. The Council subsumed other arts-related government functions, such as the Commonwealth Literary Fund, which had supported needy writers since 1908, and the Commonwealth Art Advisory Board, which was set up in 1912 to develop a national art collection and, from 1927, to advise on matters relating to the visual arts. The Australia Council was granted considerably expanded functions and greater independence from government in its policy-making and funding roles than its predecessors. As with similar bodies in Canada and New Zealand, the Australia Council's structure and functions were based on those of the Arts Council of Great Britain.

The work of the Australia Council has always been guided by two fundamental principles. The 'arms length' principle, which is enshrined in the Australia Council Act, determines that the Council is independent of government and free to act autonomously in the administration of its budget. This ensures that decisions about specific grants are made at a distance from political processes.

The second principle is 'peer assessment' whereby decisions on grants are made by artists and community representatives who are the peers of those being assessed. Grants are offered to artists and arts organisations whose proposals, in competition with those of other applicants, and within budgetary constraints, demonstrate the highest degree of artistic merit and innovation. The Council remains independent from the day-to-day business of the artists and arts organisations it assists.

The Australia Council is committed to providing the best possible system of peer-assessed funding of creative work, and will continue to ensure that creativity and excellence in the arts flourish and that all Australians have access to the arts and to the stimulation and enjoyment the arts can bring.

Organisation Chart as at 30 June 1997

THE AUSTRALIA COUNCIL

The governing body of the Australia Council is responsible for determining priorities and providing a policy and budgetary framework within which the Council and its Board, Funds and advisory bodies operate.

In accordance with the terms of the Australia Council Act 1975, the Council has between 10 and 14 members including the Chair. The Chair is appointed by the Governor-General on the advice of the Minister for the Arts. Members, with the exception of the General Manager who is a member of Council ex officio, are part-time statutory appointments made by the Minister. Terms of appointment are generally three years. Members are selected to ensure relevant expertise in the arts and regional, gender, ethnic and Indigenous community representation.

During 1996-97, the Council met six times, two of which were by teleconference.

The various Funds and the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Board administer the Council's arts funding role and are the Council's main source of advice with regard to the development of arts policy and grant programs. The Board and Funds have up to seven members, who may be appointed for four years, but in general appointments are for no more than three years. Except for the New Media Arts Fund, which was established as a Committee of Council, the Fund and Board Chairs are also members of the Council, and as such are appointed by the Minister.

In addition to their role in providing advice to the Council, the Board and Funds develop their own policies – within the framework of policies and priorities determined by the Council – to assist the assessment of grant programs in their artform areas. The power to make grant decisions is delegated from the Council to the Board and Funds.

In addition to policy input from peers on the Funds and Board, peers are involved in Council's decision-making processes through the Register of Peers. The Funds and Board select peers from the Register to assist them in assessing grant applications and making artform policy. Peers are listed on the Register for up to three years and may be invited once by each Fund to assist in grant assessment meetings. There is no limit to the number of times they may be invited to provide 'in-the-field' assessments and general policy advice. The Council's Conflict of Interest Code states that no applications are eligible for assessment where a member of the peer body making the grant decision is also the applicant, or is the sole or major beneficiary through a third party.

The Council also relies on the expert advice of peers in several specialist committees or forums established to examine particular issues which may affect more than one artform. Committees and advisory bodies currently operating include the Australia Council Multicultural Advisory Committee (ACMAC), the Australian Festival of Youth Arts (LOUD) Committee, and the Arts Export Group.

Following the Minister's appointments of new members to Council and the Funds in July 1996, over 40 members attended for a one-day induction in August 1996.

AUSTRALIA COUNCIL STAFF

Supporting the work of the Council, its Board, Funds and advisory bodies, is a full-time staff of 118 located in Sydney. Staff are appointed under the Australia Council Act 1975, on terms and conditions similar to those of the Australian Public Service.

The organisation consists of four Divisions: Arts Funding, Audience Development and Advocacy, Strategy and Policy, and Corporate Services, each headed by a Director.

Structural changes resulting from the previous year's management review were completed during the year under review. The major change was the formation of an Operations Section within the Arts Funding Division, to streamline the processing and registration of grant applications and other routine aspects of the administration of the Australia Council's funding responsibilities.

The 1996 Federal Budget also had repercussions on the Council's staffing structure, requiring regrading and contraction in some areas. Agreement was reached on the structure by the end of 1996 and the last vacant positions were being filled by the close of the financial year.

As well as the Operations Section, Arts Funding Division comprises nine sections. The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Board administration is headed by a Director and the eight other sections are headed by a Manager. These senior officers manage the grant assessment process and artform development for the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Board and each of the Funds: Community Cultural Development, Literature, Major Organisations, Dance, Theatre, Music, New Media and Visual Arts/Craft.

The Strategy and Policy Division comprises Public Affairs, Policy and Planning, and the Library, each headed by a Manager, and the Secretariat. The Corporate Services Division includes Finance and Services, Human Resources, and Information Technology, each headed by a Manager. The Audience Development and Advocacy Division comprises sections responsible for Council's work in the areas of national audience and market development, arts marketing skills development, and international marketing and promotions.

SENIOR MANAGEMENT

The Australia Council's senior management team is headed by the General Manager and includes the Directors of the four Divisions – Arts Funding, Audience Development and Advocacy, Strategy and Policy, and Corporate Services – the Director of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Section, and the Finance and Services Manager.

Christine Sammers, formerly Executive Officer of the Community Cultural Development Unit, was Director of the Arts Funding Division from its establishment in April 1996 until her departure in June 1997 to have a baby. Prior to joining the Council in 1992, Ms Sammers was a freelance director, writer, administrator and designer in the performing arts and film. Don Baxter, formerly Executive Director of the AIDS Council of New South Wales, was appointed Director, Arts Funding, from 1 July 1997.

Dr Sue-Anne Wallace, Director of the Audience Development and Advocacy Division since its formation in April 1996, was formerly Executive Officer of the Visual Arts/Craft Unit. Prior to joining the Australia Council, Dr Wallace was head of Education and Cultural Action (Public Access) at the National Gallery of Australia in Canberra. Dr Wallace left the Council on 28 July 1997 to take up a senior position at the Museum of Contemporary Art in Sydney.

Sarah Gardner is Director of the Strategy and Policy Division. She was Acting Director of the Division from May 1995, and Director from February 1996. Ms Gardner has been with the Australia Council since 1990, first as Public Affairs Manager and then as Operations and Communications Manager with the Performing Arts Unit. Prior to joining the Council she had been a senior consultant with Issues Australia and National Media Coordinator for the Australian Bicentennial Authority.

Catherine Watts, Director of Corporate Services Division, joined the Australia Council in April 1996. Ms Watts was formerly Secretary of the Australian Law Reform Commission. She has degrees in arts and law and an extensive background in corporate and legal administration.

Lydia Miller was Director of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Section until June 1997 when she left the Council to study law. Ms Miller, a performing artist, director and producer, is of Kukuelandji, Kokopera and Waanji lineage.

Gabriel Chan, Finance and Services Manager, joined the Australia Council in June 1989. Prior to this appointment, Mr Chan was College Accountant with the Sydney College of Advanced Education. Mr Chan is a member of the Institute of Chartered Secretaries and Administrators, the Chartered Institute of Management Accountants, the Australian Society of Certified Practising Accountants, and numerous other professional bodies.

THE YEAR IN REVIEW

In carrying out its statutory responsibilities during 1996-97, the Australia Council and its Funds/Board:

- received approximately 24,000 inquiries resulting in 5,225 formal applications seeking $158 million in funding;
- considered applications from 3,321 individual artists and 1,904 organisations;
- financially supported 599 individual artists with an average grant of $16,399;
- provided 1,079 organisations with average grants of $47,154 to support artistic pursuits and arts development;
- assisted 275 projects with an international component, enabling visual artists, craftspeople, writers, exhibitors, performing arts groups and individuals to develop overseas markets or to travel overseas for residencies, festivals, performances or promotional events;
- produced 26 new and revised publications, including six research reports and two co-published books;
- involved 130 artists and other peers in 47 policy and grant assessment meetings or teleconferences of Council, its Funds/Board and Committees;
- organised eight public information and discussion forums throughout the country.

CONSOLIDATION OF THE NEW AUSTRALIA COUNCIL

The year under review is best described as one of consolidation. The major policy and structural review featured in the previous two annual reports drew to a close, the culmination of a change process which began in August 1994 with the establishment of the peer assessment review. These changes were determined and guided by the Council under the chairmanship of Hilary McPhee, whose term also ended on 30 June 1997.

Ms McPhee presided over an unprecedented period of change in the Australia Council and leaves it a more streamlined, transparent and focused body, able to concentrate on the strategies and policies which best fulfil its responsibilities to the arts and the wider Australian community.

The recommendations of the second stage of the Cordiner King Hever management review were also consolidated during 1996-97, making the organisation more cohesive, with better communication internally and externally, and a stronger focus on strategy and policy development.

The outcomes targeted by Council during the review were:

- a more flexible, transparent and accountable assessment process;
- better access to a larger number and wider range of peers, the majority being practising artists;
- increased funding of individual artists;
- increased audiences, demand, and private and corporate support for Australian creative work;
- improved internal management practices within the Australia Council.

Work on achieving the targeted outcomes progressed during 1996-97.

At its November 1996 meeting Council agreed to the introduction of a Triennial Grants category in place of the previous Program Grants category. In line with Council's communication strategy, a series of forums and meetings were held around the country in February and March 1997 to discuss the implications and future possibilities arising from Council's decision. Separate discussions were held with State/Territory arts funding authorities and these will continue through 1997-98.

Australian artists are assisted with the costs of overseas touring in order to develop overseas markets and present Australian talent to the world. For example, the Australia Council has provided coordination, promotional and logistical support for a total of 16 events in the newImages program, an extensive program of contemporary arts to be staged across Britain from June to November 1997, with financial assistance totalling $350,000. The Goldner String Quartet will perform at London's prestigious Wigmore Hall as part of the newImages program. Photo: Musica Viva Australia

So far, applicants have voiced their appreciation for the opportunity to have timely and candid discussions but it would be prudent to expect some negative reactions as the effect of the strictly limited budget allocations is felt later this year.

The single Grants Handbook, introduced in 1996, was again produced in 1997, and further improvements in streamlining of the grants structure and refinement of programs, criteria and processes were consolidated.

A parallel development with the Grants Handbook has been the redesign of grant application forms to make them easier for applicants to use while at the same time facilitating the capture of information required by Fund members for assessment purposes.

Register of Peers

Peers, defined by Council as 'anyone who, by virtue of their knowledge or experience, is equipped to make a fair and informed assessment of artistic work and grant applications', are used in a variety of capacities. They participate in Fund or Board meetings by providing expert advice on the assessment of grant applications and the development of artform policy.

In this capacity peers augment the expertise of Fund and Board members so as to provide a more informed base from which to make decisions.

All Funds have now completed the first full year of grants assessment rounds under the two-tier peer assessment system introduced in April 1996. Peers from the Register (which now contains over 1300 names) have been involved in all these meetings and have also provided performance, script and application assessments which have been used as part of the assessment process. Since July 1996, 193 peers from the Register have been used, with 41 of these peers attending grant assessment meetings.

Corporate Plan

The new Australia Council Corporate Plan for 1996-99 was finalised and published in August 1996 and delivered to the Minister, Members of Parliament and State and Territory Governments. The Plan takes account of the expansion of Council's functions and the restructure of its operations and is now a working document that is readily understood by staff, the public and government alike.

The Corporate Plan affirms the long-held principles of the Council. The seven goals of the Plan are to:

- promote excellence in the arts;
- support the creation of new work;
- foster participation in and appreciation of the arts by all Australians;
- promote the unique Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures as integral to Australia's national identity;
- recognise cultural diversity in the arts;
- increase resources, opportunities and audiences for Australian arts;
- ensure the highest standards in public accountability and service.

Action planning to achieve key result areas defined for each of the goals has focused our activity and will significantly enhance future reporting.

1996-97 BUDGET

The Council's appropriation in the 1996-97 Budget was $63.8 million, down from $72.9 million in 1995-96, in line with across-the-board Government cuts and in the context of the Council's ability to manage its budget within its triennial funding agreement. The reduction included the removal of $2.6 million for the Australia Foundation for Culture and the Humanities, which was funded separately in 1996-97, and the phasing out of payments for the Australian Artists Creative Fellowships program.

The Council applied a two per cent reduction in funding, along with the loss of indexation, to organisations with multiyear funding agreements, and Council's administration and peer assessment activities were reduced by 10 per cent. As a result, and with the provisions described below for new initiatives totalling $2.8 million in 1996-97, funding levels set by the Council earlier in the year for the advertised grant programs of the Literature, Theatre, Dance, Music, Visual Arts/Craft, New Media Arts and Community Cultural Development Funds and the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Board were able to be retained. This ensured that, as much as possible, arts organisations and individuals funded through the Council could stay viable.

A positive outcome from the Budget was a three-year package of initiatives totalling $14 million to be administered by the Council. Designed to assist emerging artists, contemporary music export development, major festivals and regional arts, these initiatives are being implemented in the following ways.

Emerging Artists

Complementing the Council's existing support for emerging artists, the new funding is being allocated through strategic partnerships focusing on the exhibition and presentation of work. The initiative operates largely outside existing Council grant programs with partnerships being established by seeking expressions of interest from key relevant organisations.

The scope of the partnerships will be broad, including the exhibition of artists' work at regional or urban exhibition spaces, production of small catalogues, documenting and/or reviewing artists' work, the development of first release CDs for emerging musicians, concert series, the presentation and promotion of productions by emerging choreographers, dancers and theatre performers, traineeships, mentorships or the provision of studio access.

Council is close to finalising a number of agreements with key arts organisations to undertake strategic initiatives in all artform areas for 1997-98. An emerging artists survey and a special reporting process has been developed for use in this initiative.

Contemporary Music Export Development

Managed by the Council's Audience Development and Advocacy Division, this initiative involves two components: international promotions with music industry bodies, and an investment program.

The international promotions component includes support for The Big Backyard to produce new rock music radio programs (including Indigenous rock).

The investment program will assist export-ready Australian music artists and bands to tour to other countries to generate CD releases and increase CD sales as part of well-planned marketing strategies.

Implementation of the initiative was being finalised at the close of the year under review.

Major Festivals

$1.5 million over three years was earmarked to support the development and showcasing of new Australian work by Australia's international arts festivals.

The following projects were funded under this initiative through the Audience Development and Advocacy Division:

- Adelaide Festival for the production and presentation of The Masterkey Project, a bi-cultural theatrical production based on the novel by Japanese writer Masako Togawa, and adapted and directed by Australian theatre designer, Mary Moore; and the Stalker Theatre Company's Bending Moments, a production incorporating film and physical theatre. Both productions will be presented at the 1998 Adelaide Festival and the 1998 Perth Festival.
- Sydney Festival towards the production and presentation of the Black Swan Theatre Company/Company B co-production of Cloudstreet, a stage adaptation of the novel by Western Australian author Tim Winton. Cloudstreet will be presented at the 1998 Sydney Festival and the 1998 Perth Festival.
- Adelaide Festival Towards 2000 Commissions: the commissioning of a number of arts projects by members of the Confederation of Australian International Arts Festivals.
- Melbourne International Festival for the production and presentation of the Handspan/Regurgitator co-production of Raised by Wolves at the 1997 Melbourne International Festival and the 1998 Adelaide Festival.

Regional Arts Development

The Government allocated $7.5 million over three years for regional arts development, in recognition of the particular needs of artists and communities in regional and rural Australia. At the Cultural Ministers' Council meeting in December 1996, a decision was made to devolve the allocation for 1997-98 ($2.5 million) and 1998-99 ($3.5 million) to States and Territories on an agreed basis. Proposals were submitted through the Australia Council and endorsed by the Minister.

This process has been managed by the Strategy and Policy Division as part of its Local and Regional Arts policy activities (see page 52).

Through its Arts Funding Division, the Australia Council fosters excellence and diversity in the arts by providing support to allow artists, arts organisations and communities to create new work, to develop their artistic potential, and to make the arts accessible to wider audiences.

The Arts Funding Division is responsible for managing the grants programs for artform development and arts activities which are central to the Australia Council's activities. Australian literature, performing arts, visual arts and craft, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts, new media arts and community cultural development are supported by the grants offered by each artform Fund or Board.

Establishment of the Arts Funding Division has assisted in ensuring high standards of public accountability and service by enabling the rationalisation and centralisation of a number of administrative activities.

Financial reporting processes for commitments and returned grants have been standardised, and development of cross-Division policy, the processing of grant applications to all grant funding categories, and associated duties such as registration and file generation, and distribution of Grants Handbooks and application forms, have been streamlined in a new Operations Section with effect from 1 May 1997.

The Operations Section also manages the Register of Peers. The Register provides a resource for the Funds to draw on in ensuring that a range of suitably qualified peers are involved in the decision-making process (see page 16 for more details).

The aims of the across-Council grants assessment process are to facilitate effective, well-informed and accountable decision-making and to allow Fund members more time for qualitative discussion and consideration of grant applications.

This process was developed taking into account:

- administrative law provisions;
- accountability requirements in documenting the process;
- the workloads of both peers and staff;
- the cost of the peer assessment process.

Staff and Fund members have been fully trained in this process which all Funds and Board now follow. There has been general consensus that this process has led to better documentation and more consistent decision-making.

Provision of timely advice and information to the arts community and the general public is an important role of the Arts Funding Division. As part of this role a communications strategy has been implemented to make arts organisations and State/Territory arts funding agencies aware of changes and refinements which have been made to grants categories and associated guidelines for submitting applications. A major change this year has been the introduction of a category purely for provision of triennial funding to a limited number of suitably qualified organisations. Briefings for organisations affected by this change were held in all capital cities. Separate briefings were held with State and Territory arts funding authority staff.

Outcomes

Examples of outcomes for each artform area are provided in the following sections. Grants lists and financial summaries are at the back of this report.

Through the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Board, the Australia Council assists Indigenous Australians to claim, control and enhance their cultural inheritance.

One of the seven goals of the Council's Corporate Plan is to promote the unique Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures as integral to Australia's national identity. The Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Board (ATSIAB) aims to make these cultures a living part of the experience of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and a source of pride for all Australians.

The Minister for Communications and the Arts, Senator Richard Alston, at the launch of Arts Yarn-Up On Radio, with (from left) Cathy Craigie, General Manager, Gadigal Information Services, Hilary McPhee, then Chair, Australia Council, and Marjorie Anderson, Chair, Gadigal.

A major project for ATSIAB during the year in review was development of a National Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts policy. The first step was taken in June 1996 when Council agreed on the principles – respect, authority, rights and responsibilities, and diversity – that would guide development of the policy. The second step was to identify policy priorities. ATSIAB consulted widely with Indigenous communities around Australia, and built upon the Cultural Policy Framework created by the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Commission (ATSIC) in 1995 to ensure integration of arts and cultural expression and practice, and to highlight the relationship between these areas for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts.

The resulting policy was adopted by the Australia Council at its meeting in May 1997. It encompasses priorities for arts development, regional cultural development, intellectual property and moral rights, as well as increased exposure of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts in regional, national and international markets.

The Council's other Funds will continue their support of Indigenous artists, and new initiatives such as training for Indigenous editors, composers-in-residence and theatre directors will be supported. The Council also undertook to streamline the present three ATSIAB Committees (Performing Arts, Literature, and Visual Arts and Craft) to one Grants Committee.

As well as advising the Council on Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts issues and administering grant programs for Indigenous artists and organisations, ATSIAB undertakes a number of its own initiatives to stimulate the development of Indigenous arts.

Highlights of these initiatives include:

- Production of Arts Yarn-Up On Radio by Gadigal Information Services (Koori Radio), broadcast via the radio networks of the National Indigenous Media Service (NIMAA) and the Community Broadcasting Association of Australia (CBAA). The first series was launched by the Minister for Communications and the Arts, Senator Richard Alston, on 8 July 1996. Its success was recognised by the CBAA Best Aboriginal Program award, and the second 26-part series is now in production.
- $270,000 in direct support for the Festival of the Dreaming, the first of the annual festivals leading up to the 2000 Sydney Olympic Games, to maximise the opportunities for presentation of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander artists. Several projects that are part of the Festival were also supported in the 1996-97 grant rounds.

- Assisting a delegation of Indigenous Australian artists to the Seventh Festival of Pacific Arts held in September 1996 in Samoa. Twenty-four nations participated in the two-week celebration, which is held every four years as a celebration of the richness of the Pacific Indigenous cultures.

As part of its ongoing commitment to the development of Indigenous arts networks, the Board had initiated an annual national meeting of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Officers. Following successful meetings in Sydney in November 1995 and Melbourne in June 1996, the Board expanded the network and invited key organisations including Indigenous officers within State arts departments to the third meeting in Hobart in January 1997. Some thirty organisations have now formed into a National Indigenous Arts Network.

Encouraging artists in prisons to practice their art is a Board initiative, and is in keeping with recommendations of the Royal Commission into Aboriginal Deaths in Custody. During 1996-97, the Board initiated a national pilot project involving artists working with inmates to develop their skills. Inside Art/Out is a partnership between the Australia Council and ATSIC. The target group for the pilot projects were prisoners in those States and Territories with the highest recorded incarceration levels.

Six projects were undertaken within the pilot program. The managing organisations were:

- Workskills Advancement Corporation, Qld;
- Far North Queensland Institute of TAFE;
- Koori Arts Collective, Vic;
- Faculty of Aboriginal and Islander Studies, University of SA, Tandanya National Aboriginal Cultural Institute;

- Dumbartung Aboriginal Corporation, WA;
- 24HR Art, Centre for Contemporary Art, NT.

This has been a highly successful project and the Board is committed to its continuation; to date it has involved some 200 inmates. In some cases, correctional institutions have instituted their own programs as a result.

Indigenous organisations which received substantial support from the Board during 1996-97 include triennially funded organisations: National Indigenous Arts Advocacy Association, Magabala Books, Woomera Aboriginal Corporation and the Kimberley Aboriginal Law and Culture Centre.

Queensland storyteller and performer Maureen Watson received the Australia Council Red Ochre Award for 1996-97. This $50,000 award is the highest honour an Indigenous artist can receive from their peers. Born to a Kungalu mother and Birri Gubba father, Ms Watson has travelled the world performing her sensational one-woman shows. Her ability to communicate culture through a variety of art-forms captivates audiences of all kinds, from local school children to international adult audiences.

Members of the Australian contingent at Sydney airport bound for the Festival of Pacific Arts in Samoa. The delegation included artists and dancers from Thursday Island, Mornington Island, Yirrkala and Utopia; singers Rita Mills (Torres Strait) and Robyn Green (Darwin); rock band Footprince (Broome); Owen Love and Julie d'Lima from Mainstreet Theatre Company (Mt Gambier); storytellers Pauline McLeod and Maureen Watson; sculptors Barry Bellotti (Carnarvon), Ken Thaiday and Ricardo Idagi (Torres Strait); and the Bapu National Dancers from the ACT. ATSIAB Director Lydia Miller and Australia Council General Manager Michael Lynch accompanied the delegation. Photo: Monique March Fellowships, each worth $80,000 paid over two years, were awarded to visual artist Ginger Riley Munduwalawala; singer, songwriter and actor Leah Purcell; and playwright John Harding.

Other highlights for 1996-97 include:

- funding to allow continued activity at 38 remote area arts and crafts centres in Northern Territory, Western Australia and South Australia;
- expansion of the Indigenous internships program in Australian museums;

This large acrylic painting by Walpiri artists depicts several Dreamings which pass through Cockatoo Creek country. Commissioned by the South Australian Museum, the 4x3 metre canvas will form a spectacular centrepiece within the redeveloped Aboriginal Cultures Gallery at the Museum, due to open in 1999.

- $25,000 for a Songlines tour to Asia by Archie Roach, Ruby Hunter, Naroo Dancers and Blackfire;
- $7,000 towards recording and production of a CD for the talented young Aboriginal band, Aim 4 More;
- $35,000 for production of Stolen, an original work born out of a collaboration with the Melbourne Workers Theatre Company and staged by the Ilbjerri Aboriginal Theatre Co-op;
- $39,882 for a partnership with Forbes Employment and Training Service and Murrin Bridge Land Council to run a 12-month art development program involving workshops by visiting Aboriginal artists and craftspeople, with the ultimate aim of achieving economic independence for the participants;
- $31,500 to support a year's work by Edgar (Weemba) Harris in preparing for two solo exhibitions, drawing inspiration from his traditional background to create contemporary works on canvas;
- $16,536 to Black Duck Music Aboriginal Corporation for a program which aims to provide education through entertainment and includes touring remote WA communities with the Brown Sugar Band.

- $28,753 for the Art Gallery of South Australia to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Papunya art movement that dramatically changed the way the world perceived Aboriginal art;
- $19,297 for Ernabella women artists to participate in a demonstration and workshop of their new printmaking techniques at an exhibition at the National Museum of Australia;
- $18,500 for Melville Island artists to learn how to adapt their distinctive designs to gold and silver jewellery;

Through its Community Cultural Development Fund, the Australia Council assists communities to participate in and appreciate the arts, and to explore and express their cultural identity.

The Community Cultural Development Fund (CCDF) encourages artists and communities to work together through locally determined, community-based arts and cultural activities. Community cultural development enables communities to advance their artistic, social, and economic aspirations and provides opportunities for artists to expand their arts practice through innovative collaborations with community groups.

As part of its role in encouraging excellence in, and stimulating debate about, community cultural development practice the Fund finalised negotiations for a National Community Cultural Development Conference, DARE, to be held in Brisbane on 17-19 November 1997. Significant support for this event has come from the Brisbane City Council. The conference, the first in 12 years, will play an important role in ensuring that community cultural development practice remains dynamic in the current artistic, cultural and social environment, and will provide professional development opportunities for workers in the field.

A review of the Fund's support for community cultural development training was undertaken during 1996 so as to ensure that this support is targeted to needs. Detailed consultation was held with key stakeholders and a survey undertaken of relevant services offered and resources available. As an outcome of the review, Culture Recreation Education and Training Enterprise Australia (CREATE) is undertaking a national audit of training resources and hosting a series of workshop for the field. The results of the audit will be published in the second half of 1997.

The Fund also supported a range of innovative one-off projects with the aim of building productive partnerships in the public and private sectors which deliver community cultural development aims. Examples include:

- $38,000 to Sydney's Westmead Hospital for a commission involving artists Peter McGregor and Marie Stucci working with staff and patients to design and produce artworks for an outdoor courtyard space located in the Acute Adolescent Unit. The Hospital is contributing $20,000 to the project.
- $30,000 to the City of Fremantle, WA, for a partnership with bodies such as the Fremantle Port Authority and Arts WA, for a public artwork project celebrating the centenary of the Port of Fremantle's inner harbour in 1997. Artists are creating public artworks which capture the rich heritage of the Port, and which will help promote it to the local community and national and international tourists.
- $9,000 to St George Leagues Club, NSW, matched by an equivalent amount from the Club, for a partnership with Shopfront Theatre. Artists will teach young people theatre, circus and performance skills, and work towards a series of half-time performances during the games.

The CCDF has a strong interest in providing opportunities for artists in regional areas to express their cultural identity through the arts. Some examples of projects funded include:

- $10,000 to the Silhouette Band, WA, for a music and songwriting project with isolated Aboriginal youth, involving a concert and workshop tour by an Aboriginal band through a number of remote communities.
- A community writing project devised by the Deniliquin Council for Social Development which used a $7,000 grant to support geographically isolated writers through a series of workshops. Forty-five writers contributed to the anthology which resulted from the workshops.

On the Day you were Born, an innovative project by Preston Creative Living Centre in Melbourne, explored the ways childbirth and babies are celebrated in different communities. Participants included childcare workers, new parents and very pregnant women.

The Fund is keenly interested in promoting awareness and understanding of cultural diversity in the arts. An example of activity supported in this area is funding provided to the African Communities Council of Victoria (ACC) for a traditional performing arts project involving recently arrived communities from Ghana, Nigeria, Somalia, Eritrea, Ethiopia and Oromo. The project culminated in a major African cultural festival open to the wider community, the success of which has convinced the ACC to make it an annual event.

In order to promote artists, artworks and projects of excellence and to increase awareness of cultural development in the broader community, the Fund supported a number of research and promotional projects.

Through an initiative called the National Model Project a consultant was engaged to work with eleven community-based organisations across the country to raise their profile nationally as well as within their own community and the wider arts field. The project involved the development of sponsorship packages, marketing materials and publicity plans, and the location of potential funding sources (other than the CCDF). A publication focusing on the eleven agencies and the work they have undertaken will be released later in 1997.

This year's recipient of the prestigious Ros Bower Memorial Award was Margaret Fisher from South Australia. Ms Fisher's involvement in community arts has extended into many areas of Australia. Her work in Sydney led to the first Surry Hills Community Festival, and an award for services to the community by the University of New South Wales Alumni Association. She was a founding member of Pipi Storm Children's Circus, and Vitalstatistix Theatre Company, and has worked in many rural, remote and Indigenous communities.

Fellowships in recognition of outstanding achievement were awarded to designer and community artist Carmen Grostal; performer and community arts director Mishline Jammal; musician, psychologist and member of Somebody's Daughter Theatre Company Helen Barnacle; playwright Graham Pitts; and community artist Meme McDonald.

The CCDF's vigorous and strategic pursuit of Council's objectives throughout the year has ensured its wide-reaching success in achieving significant community cultural development outcomes and in assisting individuals and organisations in many parts of Australia to contribute to the cultural life of their communities.

COMMUNITY, ENVIRONMENT, ART AND DESIGN (CEAD)

Through its CEAD program, the Australia Council provides opportunities for communities to express their cultural identity through the arts by encouraging artists, designers and communities to work together developing links between the cultural life of communities and the quality of their physical environment. In 1997 the CEAD program was extended to include grant categories offered by both the Community Cultural Development Fund and the Visual Arts/Craft Fund.

CEAD projects provide tangible evidence at a local community level of the benefits of arts and cultural development. Many projects result in increased opportunities for tourism, local employment and regional arts.

Twenty-six grants totalling nearly half a million dollars were distributed in 1996-97. Highlights include:

- $25,000 to the City of Melville, WA, for the planning and design of a sensory playground suitable for children and adults with disabilities.
- $25,000 to the Wonthella Progress Association, in mid-west WA, for local artists and the community, mainly third and fourth generation rural Australians, to develop plans for a park and streetscape.
- $18,613 to Victorian sculptor, Robert Mangion, to create an extensive and unique sculpture garden to enhance the surrounding industrialised area of western Melbourne.

The CEAD program has highly visible public results with benefits flowing to communities, artists, local government and the environment (see page 52).

Through the Dance Fund, the Australia Council contributes to the diversity and originality of Australian performing arts by supporting the creation and presentation of the highest quality dance and movement work.

The Dance Fund supports companies, ensembles, freelance artists and independent initiatives. In all cases the focus is on innovation, creativity and the artistic rationale for the work.

During the year the Fund has supported a number of projects which reflect diversity in form and content in the creation of new work. Examples include:

- A three-year program entitled The Oaks Cafe, to be undertaken by Dance Exchange, one of Australia's most innovative dance research and performance centres. The work is centred on a cafe built on an isolated beach in central Queensland by US military forces during World War II as a dance hall for a nearby camp of American servicemen. The Oaks Cafe will range through different disciplines, between cities and across cultures.

- Chunky Move's Bonehead, by Gideon Obarzanek, which premiered at the 1997 Sydney Festival with support from the Dance Fund and a sound score commissioned through a Music Fund grant.
- Perth-based Fieldworks Performance Group to undertake a major site-specific work in the Perth Central Business District, employing eight performers working in pairs in and around architecturally interesting city locations.
- Leah Grycewicz, Qld, to perform Traversing Sense in a cross-artform collaboration with north Queensland artists.
- Diana Reyes Flamenco, NSW, to perform Mosaico, a new flamenco work inspired by Picasso's paintings and the poetry of Federico Garcia Lorca.

The Fund also supported a number of regional, national and international initiatives aimed at increasing resources, opportunities and audiences for Australian dance and movement arts, including:

- Expressions, a dance theatre company based in Brisbane, to tour to Wales and Singapore. In touring to Wales, the company will take part in the British Council's newImages '97 exchange program, and a Welsh company, Diversions, will tour to Queensland.
- Lucy Guerin, Vic, to take Incarnadine and Courtabie to New York, Paris and London.
- Kate Champion, NSW, to remount and tour Face Value to Perth and Melbourne.
- Nikki Heywood, NSW, to remount Burn Sonata for an Adelaide season.
- Margie Medlin, Vic, to tour a dance/video installation, Mobility in an Artificial City, to the Asian International Contemporary Dance Festival in New York, and to Hong Kong, Berlin, Perth and Sydney.

The Fund acknowledges the importance of professional development activities in encouraging excellence in dance and movement arts. An example of a project funded in this area is Arts Access, Victoria, who engaged the Chunky Move Dance Company's Bonehead, choreographed by Gideon Obarzanek. Bonehead proved to be one of the most successful events at the 1997 Sydney Festival and subsequently toured to Canberra and Melbourne as part of the Playing Australia-funded Made to Move dance touring program. acclaimed British Cando Co Dance Company to conduct workshops and masterclasses on integrating professional dancers and people with disabilities.

Partnerships with both public and private sector organisations have resulted in new and exciting resources and opportunities for Australian dance and movement arts. Microdance, an initiative of the Australia Council, the Australian Film Commission and the Australian Broadcasting Commission, was a three-stage dance-on-screen project recognising the emergence of choreography for the screen as a new and dynamic artform. Thirteen creative teams received development support, with four teams going into production. The four now completed works will be screened nationally on ABC-TV later in 1997.

A two-year project by the National Film and Sound Archive in association with the National Library of Australia and the national secretariat of Ausdance, will collect film and video recordings of Australian dance works. This will both preserve irreplaceable material and allow it to be electronically accessed for research and documentation purposes.

In promoting excellence the Fund is keenly aware of the cultural diversity of practice within Australian dance and movement arts. The Fund has also aimed to ensure that artists in regional areas as well as those of diverse backgrounds have the opportunity to develop their art. A Fellowship awarded to Nyirlpirr Spider Snell combines both aims in a unique and exciting project which will enable him to develop, perform and teach Kurtal dances from the Great Sandy Desert, WA, to the young people in his community.

Through its Literature Fund, the Australia Council encourages the creation, development, publication, critical appraisal and awareness of high quality contemporary Australian literature.

The Fund provides direct and indirect financial support to writers. Direct support for the creation of new work was granted to 38 writers in 1996-97.

Next Wave Festival's innovative national project, Flightpaths: Writing Journeys, placed writers in five airports around Australia to write and workshop with students, writing groups and local writers.

Of these writers, six were recipients of two-year Fellowships, awarded in recognition of outstanding achievement. The new Fellows are Jack Hibberd, prolific author of plays, poetry and fiction; children's writer Allan Baillie; fiction writers Carmel Bird, Brian Castro and Nicholas Jose; and poet John Kinsella.

Grants for the creation of new work by emerging writers, that is, writers who have some publication record but have not yet had a full-length work published, were awarded to eleven writers in 1996-97. Eleven developing writers, who have had a minimum of one and a maximum of two full-length works published or performed, were also successful. They include poets Adam Aitken and Hoang Tien Nguyen, playwright Alison Lyssa, and fiction writers Judith Fox and Shane Maloney.

Of the established writers who applied, ten were awarded grants. These ten include Gillian Mears, Alan Wearne, Marion Campbell, Venero Armano, Tegan Bennett and playwright Hilary Bell.

In line with increasing opportunities and resources available to writers, the Fund provided twelve grants to book and magazine publishers to provide income-generating commissions for writers. Among the grants approved for book publishers was $40,000 to the Text Publishing Company to commission four new full-length titles by Australian writers, and a grant to the University of Queensland Press to commission a biography of Xavier Herbert. Eight magazines were among the successful applicants under this grant category, including the Adelaide Review, which will commission writing by Frank Moorhouse and Matthew Condon, Eureka Street, and Voiceworks, which commissions work by young writers aged 16-24 years.

The presentation of the work of Australian writers and writing to wider audiences is a major focus of the Literature Fund. By supporting the publication of Australian literature in books and magazines within Australia and overseas, the Fund encourages the presentation of the work of Australian writers in as diverse a range of publications as possible.

Subsidies to 29 Australian book publishers, totalling $263,674, were approved in 1996-97 for the publication of poetry, drama, anthologies and first or second works of fiction or literary non-fiction. These subsidies will allow approximately 100 Australian writers, early in their creative lives, to see their work in print.

Some of the titles for which subsidies were approved include:

- Richard King's Kindling does for Firewood, the winner of the 1995 Australian Vogel Award;
- Vamp by Tracy Ryan, published by Fremantle Arts Centre Press;
- Random House's publication of David Foster's The Ballad of Erinungarah;
- The Optimist, a work of fiction by John Stephenson, based on the life of Australian poet Christopher Brennan, published by the Text Publishing Company;
- Sekai Nzenza-Shand's Songs to an African Sunset, travel writing published by Lonely Planet;
- Warrigal's Way, a non-fiction title by Warrigal Anderson, winner of the David Unaipon award, published by the University of Queensland Press.

To enable Australian literature to be presented to an audience outside Australia, the Literature Fund also provides subsidies to overseas publishers to assist with the translation and publication of the work of living Australian writers. Among the overseas publishers receiving grants were Chongqing Publishing House in China to publish a Chinese edition of Peter Carey's Oscar and Lucinda; Columna Edicions of Spain to translate and publish Beth Yahp's Crocodile Fury; Poetry magazine (USA) to pay Australian writers contributing to a special double issue in 1996; and Chung-Wai Literary Monthly (Taiwan) to publish a special Australian issue of the magazine.

The Literature Fund also provides funding for Australian literary magazines and among the 1996-97 grants was a two-year grant of $75,000 per annum to Australian Book Review and $25,000 per annum for two years to Overland.

The Fund also approved its first ever foundation grant of $25,000 to the literary magazine, Heat, edited by Ivor Indyk. The Fund's literary magazines policy is to encourage applications by new and adventurous literary magazines and editors.

Beth Yahp's award-winning first novel, The Crocodile Fury, was translated and published in Spanish with assistance from the Literature Fund, which also assisted the writer to travel to Spain to promote the newly published Spanish edition.

The Fund regards the promotion of Australian writing to a wider reading audience as extremely important. To this end, it supports a variety of projects, both nationally and internationally, from writers' festivals to overseas promotional visits by Australian writers.

Examples of events and activities supported in 1996-97 include:

- flagship writers' festivals in Melbourne, Brisbane, Perth, Canberra and Sydney;
- a program of lectures, readings and book signings at the Australian Bookshop in Paris, a new enterprise selling and promoting the work of Australian writers;
- financial support for the fees and fares of Australian writers appearing on the television program 'Between the Lines';
- assistance for a number of individual writers whose work had recently been published overseas to travel to and promote their work in that country, including Robert Drewe in the United Kingdom and Beth Yahp in Spain;

- assistance for the establishment and updating of the Aurora Australis Web site, which promotes Australian writers and writing on-line and globally.

The development of literary talent and skills is supported in a number of ways. For the first time in 1996-97, a Writers' Centre or Literature Officer was co-funded with the relevant arts department in every State and Territory. Professional development opportunities also include residencies of 3-6 months for Australian writers at overseas studios in Paris, Rome or Eire.

Other 1996-97 funded projects and organisations involved in professional development include:

- a masterclass at the Canberra Centre for Writing where six young fiction writers, selected from the shortlists for the A&R Bookworld and Australian Vogel awards, were offered the combined expertise of writer Amanda Lohrey, editor Carl Harrison Ford and literary agent Rose Cresswell;
- the annual conference staged by the Australian National Playwrights' Centre where new plays are workshopped;
- the International Festival for Young Playwrights, which gives 12 young Australian playwrights the opportunity to interact with 100 delegates from 30 countries.

The Fund also offers new development opportunities for Australian writers through partnerships, particularly with non-arts organisations. Eight such partnerships were funded in 1996-97 including university residencies, the Victorian Federation of Community Writing's Words on Wheels workshops, and Next Wave Festival's Flightpaths program based at five Australian airports.

In addition to its core programs, the Literature Fund also supports three devolved programs which are aimed at providing professional development opportunities for writers and support for other forms of literary creativity. These programs are for picture book illustrators (administered by the Australian Society of Authors), screenwriting attachments (administered by the Australian Film Television and Radio School), and translators (administered by the National Book Council). The Translations Program, the largest in dollar terms of the three devolved programs, awarded grants totalling $100,000 in 1996-97. The fifteen successful applicants will translate work into or from Chinese, Czech, Dutch, French, Greek, Hungarian, Italian, Polish, Russian, Spanish and Vietnamese.

Finally, in recognition of the major contributions to the field of literature made by eminent Australian writers, Emeritus Awards were granted to Rosemary Dobson and David Martin. Both award recipients have published numerous collections of verse, received many high-profile literary awards, including the Patrick White Award, and received the Order of Australia for their outstanding contributions to Australian literature.

Through the Major Organisations Fund, the Australia Council promotes the effective delivery of artistic excellence by Australian arts organisations of national standing.

Organisations are selected for inclusion in the Fund on the basis of their significant cultural role, their size (annual turnover of more than $1 million), the scope of their programs and their financial viability. They are expected to have demonstrated a high profile nationally or internationally and must show a commitment to developing the professional skills of Australian artists.

The seventeen companies supported by the Major Organisations Fund are the Australian Ballet, Australian Chamber Orchestra, Bangarra Dance Theatre, Bell Shakespeare Company, Black Swan Theatre Company, Circus Australia, Melbourne Theatre Company, Meryl Tankard Australian Dance Theatre, Musica

Viva, Playbox Theatre Centre, Queensland Ballet, Queensland Theatre Company, State Theatre Company of South Australia, Sydney Dance Company, Sydney Symphony Orchestra, Sydney Theatre Company and the West Australian Ballet Company.

Between them, in 1996, these major companies presented more than seven and a half thousand performances to over 2.35 million people, in urban and regional Australia, to regular subscribers, new audiences and students, at their home bases and on tour in Australia and overseas.

These companies face complex business and planning needs, and a central element in facilitating improvement of planning processes and financial management is stability of funding. The Major Organisations Fund has provided three-year base-grant funding for its companies, covering 1996 to 1998. Ninety-five percent of the Fund's budget is expended through these grants.

A major constituent of the 1996-98 funding agreements between the Major Organisations Fund and the companies is the development of broadly costed business plans, including benchmarks, forward targets and key performance indicators, together with appropriate systems for measuring achievements against these indicators and targets. The Fund is now working with the companies to assist them to achieve best practice processes in all areas of their business plans.

The majority of the companies receive significant funding from the States as well as from the Australia Council. The Fund, therefore, ensures that it works closely with the States and liaises with State representatives on a regular basis.

In addition to multiyear base-grant funding, the Major Organisations Fund also provides support through Partnership grants to encourage risk-taking in artistic programs and collaborative ventures, engagement with technology, and to address training needs. Examples of projects supported in pursuit of these aims include:

- $18,667 to Playbox Theatre Centre for a playwrights development program with Ilbjerri Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Theatre Co-operative;
- $50,000 to Queensland Theatre Company for a joint project with Kooemba Jdarra Indigenous Performing Arts to produce and present Louis Nowra's Radiance in the company's 1997 mainstage season;
- $58,000 to Bangarra Dance Theatre to develop Rites, a new work to Stravinsky's Rite of Spring with the Australian Ballet, in partnership with Melbourne International Festival of the Arts;
- $40,000 to Circus Oz to run a major creative development and training project in partnership with the National Institute of Circus Arts (NICA) project, Swinburne University.

The Australian Chamber Orchestra, founded in 1975, is a colourful and vibrant ensemble composed of some of the finest young musicians in Australia. In addition to subscription series in all capital cities, the Orchestra tours to regional centres and overseas on a regular basis.

Through its Music Fund, the Australia Council supports the highest quality work by encouraging artistic innovation in content, development and presentation across the broad range of Australian music practice.

The Music Fund supports music, music theatre and sound art at many stages – composition, performance, development, recording, broadcast, touring, promotion, electronic distribution and publication. It also supports the development of professional artists and the stimulation of critical debate on contemporary issues in Australian music.

The Fund recognises that the development of new and more adventurous audiences for music is a vital adjunct to the creation of new work. It also recognises the potential of partnerships, co-funding arrangements and networking on the part of artists, organisations and the Australia Council itself to further the interests of the Australian music community. Artists are therefore encouraged to explore effective strategies for the marketing and distribution of their work.

The prestigious Don Banks Music Award was awarded to Dr Richard Meale. Composer, pianist, conductor, lecturer and broadcaster, Dr Meale has played a crucial role in developing avant garde music in Australia and in raising the profile of younger generations of Australian composers. His reputation as a composer of the first rank has included such operatic works as Voss, premiered by The Australian Opera at the 1986 Adelaide Festival, and Mer de Glace.

Funding highlights for 1996-97 included:

- a commission by the English Chamber Orchestra for a new work by Peter Sculthorpe;

- engagement by the Salt Water People's Festival of Robert Lloyd as composer-director to develop, rehearse and perform an outdoor performance work, Sticks, with Darwin-based percussion group, Drum Drum;
- assistance for the Darwin International Guitar Festival to commission composer Gerard Brophy to write a guitar concerto and Peter Sculthorpe a chamber work for the festival in July 1997;
- support for the Tura Events Company Ltd to hold the inaugural Festival of New Music which aims to significantly increase new music audiences in Western Australia, to strengthen ties with cultural organisations in Asia and facilitate cultural exchange between Asian and Australian artists;
- assistance to the Wangaratta Jazz Festival, Victoria;

- assistance to the Central Australian Aboriginal Media Association (CAAMA) for the recording and promotion (locally and internationally) of Indigenous artists.

These highlights demonstrate the range of Australian music practice, and the Music Fund's commitment to recognising cultural diversity and promoting excellence in the arts, supporting the creation of new work, and providing opportunities for artists to practise their art.

Support for international touring increases opportunities and audiences for Australian artists. The Music Fund supported a number of artists and groups to present their work overseas. Highlights included:

- Victorian New Orleans-influenced jazz band the Hoodangas to tour Russia and Scandinavia and perform at the Montreux Jazz Festival and Edinburgh Fringe Festival;
- NSW folk-jazz ensemble Mara to tour Europe, North America and South East Asia;
- the Australian String Quartet to tour Italy and Germany;
- contemporary jazz ensemble Wanderlust to tour Europe;
- the Gai Bryant Quartet to tour China, Taiwan, Indonesia and South Korea;
- a return tour to Edinburgh Fringe Festival by Victorian band My Friend the Chocolate Cake, which will also take in London and Ireland;
- Bernie McGann Trio to tour to the Chicago Jazz Festival;
- Sensitive New Age Cowpersons to tour to the UK and Ireland.

Partnerships and commissions, which provide new opportunities for the professional employment of individual artists and build partnerships with organisations both within and outside the arts sector, included:

- Tasmanian-based composer Raffaele Marcellino commissioned to develop Thirst, a multimedia installation, for the Australian Museum;
- composers Antony Partos and Andrew Lancaster commissioned to create music for choreographer Gideon Obarzanek's new production of Bonehead;
- Penrith City Council's commissioning of a soundscape from Michael Whiticker;
- the premiere of a new work by Queensland composer Kent Farbach at the XIIth International Congress of Mathematical Physics.

In recognition of outstanding achievement, Fellowships were awarded to composers Dr Martin Wesley-Smith and Michael Smetanin, and jazz pianist and composer Mark Isaacs.

As part of stimulating informed critical debate among artists, the former Music Committee and the Literature Board jointly funded the words and music seminar, convened by Keith Gallasch, held as part of the 1996 Adelaide Festival. Papers and discussion from this seminar, which was attended by some of Australia's most established composers and librettists, were published in the Australian Music Centre's Sounds Australian journal in January 1997, ensuring wide distribution across the music field.

The Music Fund granted $20,000 and Council approved $80,000 for Australia's inaugural Composers' Week, held in May 1997 as part of the 4th Biennial Festival of Music. Composers' Week highlighted the talents of Australian and international composers in all musical genres ranging from classical to popular music, jazz and Indigenous music, thereby increasing awareness and knowledge of contemporary arts in the broad community and promoting awareness of the plurality of Australian arts practice. Over 45 Australian works and more than 30 works by international composers were performed, with 45 of these composers in attendance.

Through the New Media Arts Fund, the Australia Council supports interdisciplinary arts practice which displays a critical and innovative approach to art and its place in society.

The New Media Arts Fund provides funding for artists whose work is not confined to a single artform, or who are collaborating with other artists across disciplines. New technologies and other emerging media are often employed by such artists in their investigation of new forms of practice.

The New Media Arts Fund supports the creation of new work often in partnership with public and private sector organisations. Significant projects funded include:

- A six-month residency at lighting and special events company Peter Barry and Associates for visual artist Wendy Mills, to create a light, water and sound event on the Brisbane River.
- A partnership between Kalgoorlie Consolidated Gold Mines and new media artist David Carson to develop a multimedia exhibit on gold production in Western Australia.
- A three-way partnership between Griffith Artworks at Queensland's Griffith University, multimedia artist Wayne Stamp, and Deception Bay Community Youth to develop an interactive on-line book telling the stories of 'at risk' kids from Deception Bay.
- An art and technology residency in partnership with the Royal Melbourne Institute of Technology (RMIT) for Victorian multimedia artist, Daniel Crooks. A multi-award winning artist, Mr Crooks will create kinetic images or '4D movies'. This partnership will enable him to utilise RMIT's state of the art technology and industrial design workshops.
- A six-month fellowship with ABC Radio's The Listening Room for Damian Castaldi, a Sydney-based sound designer and composer. His residency will include a 45 minute three-dimensional digital sound piece for radio broadcast, the construction of a new musical instrument, and an interactive on-line sound installation.

The Australia Council values partnerships like these with the ABC, RMIT and CSIRO as they give artists working across a range of disciplines increased opportunities to develop new audiences and widen the impact of artistic life in Australia. The Council is working to develop other such joint enterprises with industry, tertiary institutions and business.

Negotiations to involve the information technology industry in Art and Technology placements continued through the year. Horst Kiechle is the inaugural recipient of the artist-in-residency at CSIRO Mathematical and Information Sciences. The residency will enable Mr Kiechle to work with the Canberra-based virtual environments research program at CSIRO. Firmware, a distributor and publisher of multimedia products, has had to postpone their offer of an artist-in-residence placement in 1997.

During the year the Fund has supported a number of projects which will provide professional development opportunities for new media artists. As a complementary aim the Fund has also supported a number of projects which will increase audiences nationally and internationally for new media arts. Examples of these projects are:

- $25,000 to enable Street Level Incorporated, an artist initiative operating in western Sydney, to mount a Cyber Cultures exhibition in the dramatic industrial architecture of the Casula Powerhouse.
- $60,000 for SBS-TV to commission sound artists, photographers and digital artists to work with filmmakers to create a new work for national presentation on eat carpet, a one hour show of the best short film and video from around the world.
- $20,000 to enable leading Australian virtual art gallery Urban Exile to expand its activities in authoring VRML (Virtual Reality Mark-up Language) exhibition spaces, document performance art, and initiate live chat projects.
- $113,500 to collaborative performance group skadada for the creation of new work to tour to Asia and New Zealand, using interactive technologies with image making, video and sound design. The work will also be presented at the Perth Institute of Contemporary Arts and the Adelaide Festival in 1998.

Organisations receiving support for a program of activity include the Adelaide-based Australian Network for Art and Technology (ANAT). ANAT's projects include sending three multi-skilled artists, their computers and satellite links to the Internet, to regional youth organisations in NSW and Queensland; increasing on-line access to their extensive database of artists' work; and providing various training opportunities for artists working with science and technology.

Fellowships to both recognise and encourage outstanding achievement were awarded to Ross Gibson, Jon McCormack and Josephine Starrs.

Dr Gibson will create a sound and slide show and CD-ROM Life after Wartime drawn from thousands of forensic photographs in the archive of the Justice and Police Museum in Sydney. Gibson will also work on a storytelling project on the Internet with the Flying Arts organisation in Queensland and will tap into isolated communities and use new technologies to create art from everyday life in the bush – the gossip on the 'wire'.

Jon McCormack produces new media artworks using software developed for creating virtual environments. His work examines the aesthetic relationship between computer-mediated and natural biological forms, using artificial life programming techniques.

Josephine Starrs will undertake a six-month residency in Xerox Park, California, researching and developing new media technologies. Her multimedia work explores everyday relationships between humans and computers, such as ATM machines and computer dating services.

Through the Theatre Fund, the Australia Council encourages innovation and diversity in the creation and presentation of Australian theatre work. It encourages exploration of new content as well as new processes, forms, and audiences.

The Fund fosters a wide range of approaches to the creation of theatre including text-based theatre, devised work, contemporary performance, puppetry, visual theatre, youth theatre, circus and physical theatre.

Examples of new Australian work staged with the support of the Theatre Fund include:

Wake Baby is stunningly visual theatre which combines puppetry, acrobats, objects and ropes. It was commissioned by the Queensland Performing Arts Trust for the 1996 Out of the Box Festival.

Following a successful season at the Australian Festival for Young People in Adelaide in March-April 1997, the production toured to North America and Europe.

- Company B (Belvoir Street Theatre), continuing its commitment to staging new Australian plays, presented the 1997 premiere of Beatrix Christian's The Governor's Family, set in NSW Government House at the turn of the 20th century; and the epic restaging of Julie Janson's Black Mary, chronicling the true story of Mary Anne Ward, Aboriginal bushranger and companion to the infamous Captain Thunderbolt.

- Deckchair Theatre, based in Fremantle, WA, produced Sally Richardson's I Am Nijinsky and has commissioned distinguished playwright, John Romeril, who is exploring the story of one of Fremantle's most notorious underground figures, Shiner Ryan, for a new stage musical.

During the year the Theatre Fund provided grants for a number of innovative proposals which explored diverse and new forms. An example is Arena Theatre Company which received $181,800 for its 1997 program which includes the production of a second 'exploration in anthroPOP' Panacea and the development of a third anthroPOP production, Mass. 'AnthroPOP' is a fusion of theatre forms, devised by Arena with Australia Council support, which explores the intersection of theatre with popular music and culture.

A number of projects explored the diversity of cultural identities within Australia including:

- Kooemba Jdarra Indigenous Performing Arts in Queensland to undertake workshops and training opportunities; the commissioning of new works Bethel and Maude by Roxanne McDonald and Jo-Ann Close and Blak Story, a community show; plus local and international tours of the highly successful The 7 Stages of Grieving.
- Gilgul Theatre to develop and produce The Operated Jew. Artistic Director Barrie Kosky will weave together two remarkable stories in this new production: Isaac Steinberg (Lenin's former comrade) envisaged a new Jewish homeland for European Jews in the Australian desert and spent four years from 1939 lobbying the governments of the day to establish a settlement in the Kimberleys; in 1893 Oskar Panizza published a chilling novella The Operated Jew in which a Jew undergoes disfiguring operations that transform him into a 'European'.

ing new resources and opportunities for artists. During the year the Fund supported a number of partnerships including:

- Macquarie University and Theatre of Image to underwrite artists' fees in the development of three new works in 1997 and 1998. The University will contribute staff and technical resources from the Institute of Early Childhood, the Department of Mass Communications, and the Design and Visual Production Unit. This applies multimedia and film expertise and resources to the creation of new stage works, particularly for young audiences.
- Melbourne-based Zeal Theatre to tour Tatau: Rites of Passage to the Pacific Wave Festival in Sydney in November 1996. Zeal Theatre collaborated with New Zealand company Pacific Underground to create the work, which combines true stories of Pacific Island migration with a presentation of a Samoan ritual tattooing, performed nightly during the show by world-famous body artist, Su'a Paulo Suluape II.
- The shires of Campaspe, Urana, Towong and Albury City Council, Hothouse Theatre and local community groups to look at the significance of water to landlocked rural Australian communities. In the Deep End will be performed at the Albury Swim Centre using circus rigging, irrigation systems, walls of water and compressed air flotation to create a spectacular theatrical event.

The Fund supports projects which provide professional development opportunities for theatre artists as well as those which stimulate debate about Australian theatre. An example of these is a grant given to the Blue Room, Perth's foremost venue for supporting and presenting new theatre works, which received $35,000 to allow theatre artists a forum in which to try out new ideas in a supportive environment.

Theatre Fund grants have also supported script development programs by the Multicultural Theatre Alliance (NSW), Playlab (Qld), and Stages (WA), and the engagement of dramaturgs by both the Melbourne Writers Theatre Inc and La Mama.

Some examples of grants provided to assist young artists in regional areas to develop their art are:

- The Flying Fruit Fly Circus to conduct circus workshops for the young people of Albury and Wodonga, to develop and tour a main-stage show Outburst, and conduct the annual National Circus Training Project.
- Riverland Youth Theatre, based in Barmera, SA, to co-commission (with Unley Youth Theatre) a new play by Andrea Lemon exploring the relationship between young people and their cars, as well as offering a range of workshops for young people in the Riverland area including an Indigenous youth dance workshop program.

In recognition of outstanding achievement, Fellowships were awarded to playwright Noelle Janaczewska, theatre designer Mary Moore, and senior actor June Jago.

As part of the Fund's encouragement of international initiatives Theatre Physical Productions will undertake their first overseas tour, taking Miss Havisham's Dream to Europe. The Marrugeku Company, a collaboration between the Kunbarljinaja Community from northern Australia, urban Aboriginals and the Stalker Theatre Company, was assisted to tour Mimi to European festivals in June-July 1997 before appearing at the Festival of the Dreaming in Sydney.

Through its Visual Arts/Craft Fund, the Australia Council supports the creation, presentation and interpretation of contemporary Australian visual art and craft.

The Visual Arts/Craft Fund supports individual artists to create new work and develop through professional opportunities both nationally and internationally.

The Fund supported proposals from 83 artists to create new work. Individual projects included Robyn Stacey's proposal to develop large scale images using 3D technology and animation; upgrading of studio equipment by jeweller Elizabeth Fotiadis; research by Hou Leong into differences between Western and Asian art; and the development of new ceramic works by Sandra Black.

Opportunities for professional development and artform debate were provided through a number of grants. Examples include:

- $10,000 to the International Artists Workshop, WA, enabling an unprecedented collaboration of 20 artists from Australia, Africa, Europe and the Caribbean. The project played a significant role in the development of the visual arts in Western Australia through broadening the experience of artists, raising public awareness and creating new international links.

- $103,000 over two years to Victoria's 200 Gertrude Street for a program of exhibitions and associated activities, designed to provide professional opportunities and support for contemporary artists in the early stages of their careers.

Twenty-five Australian artists were offered professional development opportunities during four to twelve month residencies at VACF studios in cities including Barcelona, Milan, Paris, Manila, Los Angeles and Tokyo. In addition to these, several self-organised residencies were assisted.

The Fund also assisted a national network of organisations to increase the scope for artists to exhibit new and experimental work and improve opportunities for the public to view, understand and enjoy contemporary art and craft. These organisations include contemporary art spaces, crafts councils, advocacy bodies and exhibitions touring support agencies. They offer professional advice to artists, develop interstate and regional exhibition touring, exhibit and promote the work of Australia's emerging and established artists and craftspeople, and publish research, reviews and critical writing.

A number of specific projects aimed at increasing audiences for and improving access to the work of visual artists and craftspeople are:

- $33,000 to the Crafts Council of Queensland, part of which funded research, consultation and the development of a touring exhibition of Indigenous craft;
- $15,000 to the Liverpool Migrant Resource Centre to produce the exhibition Relations, showcasing the work of artists from within one of the most diverse multicultural communities in Australia;

- multiyear funding of $431,000 over three years to Contemporary Art Services Tasmania for contemporary art exhibitions and touring activities;
- $20,000 to Arts Access Victoria to produce an exhibition, Body Suits, involving artists with and without disabilities;
- $25,000 for the exhibition, The Eloquent Object, curated by the University of NSW College of Fine Arts, shown in Taiwan and Sydney.

Major exhibitions supported by the VACF in 1996-97 include the Asia Pacific Triennial of Contemporary Art at the Queensland Art Gallery and the International Craft Triennial at the Art Gallery of Western Australia.

The Fund also encouraged a number of international initiatives through support of Australian participation at prominent international events. Sara Lindsay, John Corbett and Liz Jeneid represented Australia at the 9th International Triennale of Tapestry in Lodz, Poland during May to July 1998. Visual artist Mike Parr attended the 6th Havana Biennial during May 1997 and, from June 1997, Matthew Ngui participated in documenta X, in Kassel, one of the most important international exhibitions of contemporary art. Tracey Moffatt participated in the XXIII Biennial of Sao Paolo during October to December 1996, and the DIA Foundation, New York, was assisted to present an exhibition of her work from October 1997.

The Fund also assisted Craft Australia towards Australian representation in the prestigious Concorso della Ceramica d'Arte, Faenza, for which works by Lynda Draper, Fiona Hiscock and Fiona Murphy were selected.

A number of projects which broaden opportunities for creative links between the arts and other sectors, and assist artists in gaining access to resources or skills normally unavailable to them, were supported. Such projects included a proposal for a mentorship at the Centre for Contemporary Craft in Sydney by the Union Street Ceramic Studio, an artist-run craft workshop based in Lismore, and assistance for electricity supplier Loy Yang Power Ltd to employ Clive Murray-White as company artist.

The Fund aims to increase indirect support for individual artists by encouraging organisations both within and outside the arts sector to support and present artists' work. Projects supported included a commission by the University of Ballarat and the City of Ballarat for artist Ken Searle to paint a portrait of the city.

Outstanding achievements in visual arts and craft were acknowledged through the award of Fellowships to ceramicist Les Blakebrough; painter Tim Johnson; visual artists Aleksander Danko, Fiona Foley and Janet Laurence; writer Ewen McDonald; installation artist Domenico de Clario; and metalsmith Johannes Kuhn.

Senior artists honoured with Emeritus Awards in 1996 were sculptor and jeweller Matcham Skipper, and ceramicists Gwyn Hanssen Pigott and the late Joan Campbell.

To assist in evaluating the efficacy of its funding strategies the VACF, through the Strategy and Policy Division, commissioned Professor David Throsby and Claire Bardez to undertake

The main Australia Council goals addressed by the Audience Development and Advocacy Division (AD&A) are to increase participation in and appreciation of the arts, and to increase promotional opportunities for Australian artists.

Unlike Arts Funding Division, AD&A does not fund marketing and advocacy activity through a competitive grants round process; rather, it works proactively to develop and implement initiatives which complement the support available through the grant programs offered by the Funds and Board.

AD&A's initiatives aim to:

- consolidate existing Australian arts audiences;
- build new audiences for Australian arts, both nationally and internationally;
- enhance arts marketing skills and practices in Australia;
- promote Australian arts nationally and internationally;
- develop partnerships in the public and private sectors to increase audiences;
- establish new markets for Australian arts.

Its core activities are:

- national audience development and marketing;
- arts marketing skills development;
- international marketing and promotions.

AD&A also manages the Contemporary Music Export Development and Major Festivals initiatives announced in the 1996-97 Budget (see pages 17-18).

NATIONAL AUDIENCE DEVELOPMENT AND MARKETING

This program aims to develop new audiences and markets for Australian arts in response to ongoing demand from the field and in accordance with the Australia Council's policy objectives (including the Arts for a Multicultural Australia, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts, Arts and Disability, and Regional Arts action plans).

Initiatives supported in 1996-97 include:

- Development of joint marketing strategies by two arts marketing consortia, Canberra Arts Marketing and Arts Around Adelaide.
- Publication of a high-quality national arts marketing newsletter, am.
- The State Theatre of South Australia's Young Audience Development Strategy, which includes an 'arts starter' mini-subscription package and web@state, a theatre entertainment package designed specifically for under 26-year-olds. The program will be marketed principally through a Web site as well as television, street press and cafe advertising.
- The Arts for a Multicultural Australia Audience Development Initiative, which distributed a total of $206,783 to promote the initiative and fund four arts organisations to enable them to extend their marketing to culturally diverse audiences. Sydney Symphony Orchestra, Johnstone Shire Cultural Association/Cairns Regional Gallery, Northern Rivers Performing Arts Inc and Victorian College of the Arts were supported under this initiative.
- LOUD: Australia's first national media festival of youth culture and the arts, which will run throughout January 1998, profiling the creativity and artistic vision of young Australians aged 12 to 25 through an extensive program utilising television, radio, print, and the Internet. LOUD was officially launched on 24 April 1997.

- The Australian's Review of Books, which publishes the work of Australian writers in a mass circulation format, was supported with the aim of increasing the national and international readership for the best of Australian writing on the arts.
- The Virtual Writer-in-Residence pilot project, managed by the SA Cooperative Multimedia Centre, Ngapartji, has completed its successful first year with many activities under way, including a Web site facilitating critical comment and audience interface with writers, networking between writers through a virtual 'salon', a virtual mentoring program, and links to publishers and other resources.
- A performance agreement negotiated with ArtsLink (formerly the Australian Centre of the International Theatre Institute) to provide a comprehensive, cross-artform information and database service to artists and arts organisations.
- The Queensland Theatre Company to provide resources for Internet activities; in particular an on-line booking facility feasibility study and a marketing survey and evaluation.
- The inaugural Brisbane Biennial Composer's Week, supported with the Music Fund, to develop national and international audience and market development components.

Wherever possible, AD&A seeks to work in partnership with other government bodies that have responsibilities in audience development and marketing or related industry development areas. A two-day meeting held in Sydney in April 1997 brought together staff from the Australia Council, State/Territory arts departments and ministries, the Department of Communications and the Arts and Creative NZ to consider the recommendations of Council's report Marketing the Arts; to exchange information on audience and market development activity and discuss possible collaborative ventures; and to agree on protocols, roles and responsibilities relating to the work of the various agencies represented.

A range of initiatives to do with the use of the Internet in arts marketing are planned, beginning with the collection of data (through AGB McNair) as a basis for developing on-line arts marketing projects.

ARTS MARKETING SKILLS DEVELOPMENT

The arts marketing skills development program was introduced to address a need identified during Council's arts marketing needs study, the results of which were published in May 1997 in a report entitled Marketing the Arts. The program includes the production of resource materials on specific marketing practices. So far, these include:

- A practical manual on developing effective marketing strategies, Marketing Strategies for Arts Organisations, which will be delivered through a series of workshops in eight capital cities and four regional centres around Australia in the latter half of 1997.
- An innovative Council research study into buyers and non-buyers of visual art, To Sell Art, Know Your Market, the findings of which were presented in a series of marketing seminars for commercial gallery operators in the five mainland state capitals in April 1997.

Partnerships to support AD&A's marketing skills development program include one with ArtsWA to conduct a seminar in Perth on the subject of arts marketing on the Internet, and a partnership with the Australian Institute of Arts Management to conduct similar seminars in Sydney and Melbourne. Strategic alliances are also being explored with a range of organisations in the public and private sectors including the Australian Marketing Institute and the Centre for Professional Development.

A concept has been developed by consultant Tess Dryza in association with the Open Training and Education Network for an arts marketing Web site to facilitate access to arts marketing resources, networking and skills development for a range of arts organisations and individual artists.

INTERNATIONAL MARKETING AND PROMOTIONS

Arts Export Strategy

The Arts Export Strategy is an extension across artforms of the Visual Arts Export Strategy, which was introduced in 1991. The new Arts Export Strategy supports the export of theatre, dance, music, visual arts, craft and literature. The Arts Export Group, chaired by Professor David Throsby, met for the first time in December 1996, and separate meetings of three artform export groups were held in early 1997.

• Visual Arts/Craft Export Strategy

The core program has enabled 20 commercial galleries to attend ten international fairs in North America, Asia and Europe with considerable flow-on benefits expected. A commercial exhibition of Indigenous Australian art was supported to coincide with the Venice Biennale in June. Australian galleries participated in Art Chicago (May 1997) and Art 28 '97 in Basel (June). Craft Australia has received support to manage participation at Tresors '97 in Singapore, the San Francisco International Gift Fair and SOFA '97 in Chicago.

• Theatre/Dance/Music Export Strategy

Continuing support for visits by key arts professionals to assess Australian artists/companies for inclusion in major international festivals; funding participation by Australian producers and arts managers in key arts markets overseas; limited strategic funding for international touring arising out of the Australian Performing Arts Market; and support for the third Arts Market in February 1998 are priorities for the strategic development of international markets for Australian dance, theatre and music.

• Literature Export Strategy

The Literature Group resolved to work with the Australian Publishers' Association to increase marketing opportunities for Australian literature through participation in key international book fairs such as Bologna Book Fair, Book Expo Chicago and Frankfurt Book Fair; to support visits to Australia to coincide with key national literary events (eg APA Australian Book Fair) by international literary professionals and promotional overseas tours by Australian authors; and to produce a Rights Catalogue, a catalogue of Australian literary publishers and titles.

AD&A has an ongoing partnership with the Asialink Centre, which runs an arts program in the Asian region comprising residencies in literature, visual arts and craft, performing arts and arts administration. Asialink, through its unique expertise and networks in the field of Australian-Asian cultural exchange, encourages business support for the Australian arts in Asia, and AD&A funded the development by Asialink of a domestic marketing/promotional campaign, launched in May 1997.

Major Organisations Fund International Touring Initiative

AD&A, under this initiative, has funded:

- the Australian Ballet tour to China;
- the Australian Chamber Orchestra tour to London (newImages);
- Meryl Tankard's Australian Dance Theatre tour to Germany, Belgium and Denmark;
- Bangarra Dance Theatre tour to the Edinburgh Festival (newImages);
- Playbox Theatre Centre tour to Croatia.

International Promotions

AD&A manages Australia Council participation in key international promotional events, increasing the international profile and expanding markets for Australian arts, and representing the professional interests of Australian artists involved in such events. Additionally, the Australia Council liaises with Australian and State/Territory governments, overseas governments and arts organisations on export opportunities for the arts.

The Australia Council took a proactive role in a Department of Foreign Affairs and Trade country promotion, Australia-India New Horizons, coordinating a comprehensive, multi-art-form arts program across five Indian cities in October-November 1996. The program received unprecedented popular and media acclaim in India, with ongoing links created and commercial opportunities identified between artists, arts organisations and arts administrators. The Council was also instrumental in coordinating Federal-State cooperation in funding and delivering the cultural program, and received wide recognition for the effectiveness of its activity, resulting in closer cooperative links with a range of government agencies.

newImages '97 is a country promotion in Australia initiated by the British Council. As part of a reciprocal Australian response, the Australia Council program is a select group of high-quality events including a writers' exchange, contemporary Australian art exhibitions, and performances at key British venues and events, including the London International Festival of Theatre and the Edinburgh Festival.

AD&A coordinated a major performing arts promotion at two major arts events in North America in December 1996: CINARS in Montreal and the annual conference of the International Society of Performing Arts Administrators (ISPAA) in New York.

Management of Australia's participation in the 1997 Venice Biennale lies with AD&A. The exhibition, entitled fluent, comprised works by three indigenous women artists, Kwentymai Kngwarreye, Yvonne Koolmatrie and Judy Watson, managed by the Art Gallery of New South Wales and curated by Hetti Perkins and Brenda L Croft. The Commissioner was Michael Lynch, General Manager of the Australia Council.

International Advocacy

AD&A has developed a range of additional initiatives to enhance international recognition of the excellence of the Australian arts. These include:

- producing and distributing an international advocacy video, outlining the international roles of the Australia Council and highlighting innovative Australian arts practice;
- initiating and managing visits by key overseas arts journalists in conjunction with major promotional initiatives (eg by Japanese, Korean and Taiwanese journalists in advance of tours by major Australian companies; by the Times of India arts editor in advance of Australia-India New Horizons; by the Times of London arts editor in advance of newImages);
- initiating and managing Australia Council briefings for visiting overseas delegations and senior Australian diplomats.

As part of the newImages promotion, a team of British and Australian writers produced four special issues of RealTime during the London International Festival of Theatre in June 1997 (from left: Linda Marie Walker, Virginia Baxter, Gabriel Gbadamosi and Richard Murphet).

The Strategy and Policy Division provides support to Council in its daily operations and coordinates the various functions and responsibilities granted to the Council under the Australia Council Act.

Policy, planning and research, public affairs, library, arts infrastructure support and the Council's Secretariat are all part of this Division.

POLICY AND PLANNING

One of the Division's main achievements has been the development of the 1996-1999 Corporate Plan and detailed action planning. The Division has also managed Council's response to the new policies identified in the 1996-97 Budget for regional arts, emerging artists, major festivals and contemporary music export.

The Division coordinated Council submissions to a number of government inquiries/reviews, including:

- Mansfield (ABC);
- Gonski (film);
- Establishment of a sixth television channel;
- Australian content on-line and on pay TV;
- Department of Communications and the Arts (DoCA) forum about Indigenous intellectual property issues;
- ArtBank scoping study and review;
- Higher education financing and policy;
- Role and future of Australia Television and Radio Australia;
- Reform of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Heritage Protection Act;
- Copyright Law Review Committee: simplification of the Fair Dealing provisions of the Copyright Act.

The Division administers a range of projects for Council, including infrastructure support for the Australian Copyright Council and the Arts Law Centre and cross-artform projects related to artform development. The Division also maintains liaison with CREATE (Culture Research Education and Training Enterprise Australia) which is the training advisory board for cultural industries, and the Australian Institute of Arts Administration which is the peak national body representing arts managers in Australia.

Strategic research which produces information that is directly useful – for example, in assisting artists and arts organisations to better understand existing and potential audiences – is a critical contribution the Australia Council makes to the arts. Projects conducted during 1996-97 include:

- the fifth edition of the Council's compendium of arts statistics, The Arts: Some Australian Data, prepared by the Australian Bureau of Statistics (ABS);
- a joint study with the Powerhouse Museum on ways to promote greater access to museums and art museums by people of non-

English speaking background, Aboriginals and Torres Strait Islanders, published as Open Up! Guidelines for Cultural Diversity Visitors Studies;

- a research project, in collaboration with the National Culture/Recreation Statistics Unit of the ABS, on Indigenous artists in Australia;
- research for a paper on international visitors and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander arts;
- an analysis of data on career paths, training, employment and income of Australian visual artists and craftspeople, published as Similarity and Difference: Craftspeople and Visual Artists in Australia;
- Corporate Support for the Arts 1996, a study of corporate sector support for the arts which builds on three previous surveys, allowing comparisons to be made back to 1986;
- a major study of consumers and potential consumers of visual arts and fine crafts, published as To Sell Art, Know Your Market;
- a study of marketing and audience development by Australian arts organisations, titled Marketing the Arts;
- the final in the series co-published with Allen & Unwin, The Art of Self-Promotion: Musicians;
- a review by the ABS on arts employment and unemployment in Australia, published as Artwork: A Report on Australians Working in the Arts;
- a study of audiences and potential audiences for music, theatre and dance;
- a survey of the type and frequency of arts festivals in Australia, their attendances, artist engagements, staffing, income and expenditure.

Other areas of policy activity included:

- New Media and Technology

The Council continued to address the implications of digital technology for the Australia Council and the arts community. It sought advice in acquiring skills and standards for the assessment of digital work, in developing on-line services, and in building an appreciation of new media and new technologies in relation to the arts.

Council's advocacy about Australian content regulation, broadcasting and industry development have highlighted the impact of new technologies.

The Council's site on the World Wide Web (<http://www.ozco.gov.au>) incorporates details of all the Council's grants programs and information for potential applicants, as well as other information about the Council and its staff, frequently asked questions, links to other arts organisations, press releases and articles from the Council's newsletter Artforce. The site's potential to enable the Council to better serve its constituents, for example through on-line application forms, publications and collaborative projects, is being addressed as resources allow.

Through its Strategy and Policy Division, Council has continued to build relationships with other agencies and organisations in the new technologies field, especially with a number of the Cooperative Multimedia Centres.

- Arts and Taxation

Throughout the year in review, the Australian Taxation Office (ATO) scrutinised

Collaborations with the Australian Bureau of Statistics are vital for informed research on the arts in Australia.

Here Barry Haydon, Director of the Bureau's National Centre for Culture and Recreation Statistics in Adelaide, and George Sarossy, First Assistant Statistician, ABS, talk with new Australia Council Chair, Margaret Seares at the launch of Artwork: A Report on Australians Working in the Arts, an important research project undertaken by the ABS for the Australia Council during the year.

artists and their ability to claim deductions as part of carrying on a business. The Division arranged a series of meetings to discuss the ATO's draft ruling on the issue and made a submission on the Sales Tax Draft Bulletin: Works of Art which sought to inform the ATO about contemporary art practices. It worked with the Arts Law Centre to make a submission based on the authoritative Australian judgment for the definition of a work of art.

- Local and Regional Arts Development

Since 1 July 1996 the Division has coordinated the development of a Council-wide regional arts action plan and a related regional arts policy statement. The Division has negotiated with State and Territories on the implementation of the Regional Arts Budget initiative, and developed multi-State projects worth a total of $6 million for implementation in 1997-98 and 1998-99.

A number of strategic initiatives are also being undertaken through partnerships with the Australian Local Government Association (ALGA) and the Department of Primary Industries and Energy (DPIE). These include research and consultation to develop a practical guide to evaluation and benchmarking for local government cultural development practice; and development of a resource kit to assist local councils in outsourcing the management of performing arts centres.

The partnership with DPIE is linked to the Rural Partnership Program, which builds arts and cultural development strategies into holistic and multifaceted regional development strategies. SunRISE 21 – Sunraysia Regional Initiative for a Sustainable Economy, 21st century – has been funded through this initiative to develop an artist-in-rural-industry project. The project examines land and water management issues through placing artists with rural industries in the Sunraysia region on the NSW-Victorian border. The Division also liaises with the Foundation for Australian Agricultural Women which received funding to pilot regional arts and skills development projects with rural women in East Gippsland in Victoria and the Atherton Tableland in North Queensland.

- Community, Environment, Art & Design (CEAD)

The Division monitored activity for Council and coordinated advocacy and strategic initiatives, such as the development by a Western Australian consortium of a Web site to promote critical debate around CEAD-related issues; the commissioning and distribution by the Melbourne-based Key Centre for Design at RMIT of critical papers on environmentally sustainable design; and, in partnership with the ALGA, the development of urban design guidelines for local government (see page 25).

- Arts for a Multicultural Australia (AMA)

The promotion of cultural diversity is recognised by Council as integral to all policy and program initiatives. A quarterly reporting process for the implementation of the AMA Action Plan was put in train following the May 1996 Council meeting, which required the Director of each Division to provide specific information relative to performance indicators.

Cultural Perspectives Pty Ltd was commissioned to develop a 'best practice models' publication and a pilot project to provide a guide for organisations to respond effectively to Australia's cultural diversity and in accordance with Council's goals and policy principles.

- Arts and Disability

As part of the Australia Council's Disability Action Plan and its partnership with the Disability in the Arts, Disadvantage in the Arts, Australia Network (DADAA), the Division developed a draft Fact Package on the impact of Federal disability legislation on arts organisations.

- Arts and Education

The Division actively liaised with key players in the arts and education field to address issues facing support for Australian arts. A substantial submission to the Department of Employment Education and Youth Affairs (DEETYA) about the operation of the funding formula known as the 'research quantum', and the inclusion of Australia Council funding in the composite index of funding which can affect that quantum, is one example from the year under review.

SECRETARIAT

The Secretariat provides support services to the Council, its Chair and General Manager, and generally acts as a point of contact regarding Council's legislative functions.

Its services include scheduling and coordinating all Council meetings and agendas, and liaison with the Minister and his office and with DoCA regarding these functions. One of the main events organised by the Secretariat this year was the national induction day for Council and new Board/Fund members, held on 13 August 1996.

Responses to over 100 ministerials and 27 questions-on-notice (including some from the Senate Estimates Hearings) were coordinated during 1996-97.

Management of the Register of Peers was moved from Secretariat to the new Operations Section of Arts Funding Division during the year, as was responsibility for coordinating requests for information and reviews of decisions under both the Commonwealth Government's administrative law provisions and Council's own internal review mechanisms.

Details of information requested under Section 8 of the Freedom of Information Act are provided at the end of this report, together with the Council's Freedom of Information statistics (see page 129).

LIBRARY

The role of the Library is to develop and maintain a high standard of arts industry publications and current awareness services for Australia Council staff and the arts community. These resources now consist of books, reports, journals, videos, CDs, databases and the Internet.

The Library engaged in many reference and circulation activities in order to meet the information requirements of its clients: 3,430 inquiries were satisfied directly by the Library and its resources, while a further 164 items were borrowed through the Inter Library Loan (ILL) system. The Library made its resources available to other institutions throughout Australia by lending 130 items on ILL. Over the last year the Library purchased, catalogued and processed 1,582 new titles for the collection, and subscribed to approximately 350 journals.

In its first full year of operation, the automated library system Horizon has not only enabled the Library to vastly improve the level of service to its clients, it has also allowed it to maintain that level of service despite the reduction in staffing the Library received as a result of budget cuts. Australia Council staff are now able to search the library catalogue as well as a number of Australian databases (AUSTROM) from their desktop.

The promotion and launch of the Market, which showcased sixteen leading Australian companies to over 400 local and international industry delegates, was a major and successful project for the Council. The Library played a key role in Council's Internet presence by coordinating the Internet Reference Group, by managing staff Internet training sessions delivered by CADRE of the University of Western Sydney, and by compiling and maintaining a list of over 170 relevant Internet sites. The Library also researched national and international Internet developments as they relate to the arts sector, and advised on strategies to benefit the arts community.

PUBLIC AFFAIRS

The role of the Council's Public Affairs Section is to enhance awareness and appreciation of the role of the Australia Council in arts development. The section maintains close liaison with the rest of Council, the arts community, the government and the media to identify, advise and act on promotional and information needs and opportunities. It also monitors and responds to relevant issues raised in the media.

A total of 75 press releases announcing grants and other Council initiatives were distributed during 1996-97 and Public Affairs responded daily to media requests for information and interviews on a range of issues.

A major Public Affairs achievement in this period was the finalisation of a new 'look' for Council publications, created by newly appointed graphic designers, Antart. The 1997 Closing Dates poster, Grants Handbook, Corporate Plan and print advertising are in the new format, with the Council's World Wide Web site and other print publications to follow.

A successful strategy was introduced to expand coverage of Council support for the arts in regional Australia through regular information packages and releases provided to Federal Parliamentarians for distribution.

Since July 1996, there has been a sustained period of positive coverage of the Council's activities on the following topics: the new Budget initiatives, the Performing Arts Market, grant round announcements (particularly the Literature grants), the Australia-India New Horizons program, and the Venice Biennale. The Council also gained widespread coverage of its major research publications released, including The Arts: Some Australian Data (fifth edition), Marketing the Arts and Corporate Support for the Arts.

There was mixed media coverage to Council's announcement of a $176,000 grant to assist The Australian newspaper with commissioning material by Australian writers in its new literary magazine.

The Public Affairs Section considerably expanded its media contacts list to include a wider variety of mainstream media and has been successful in introducing the activities of the Council to outlets such as mainstream non-arts media such as commercial radio as well as multimedia publications and overseas correspondents.

A total of 26 publications were released during the year, including three editions of the Council's newsletter, Artforce. See pages 132-133 for the full list of publications issued in 1996-97.

Public Affairs also manages the information design and compiles all the content for the Council's Web site. The site has information for grant applicants (including in 1997, for the first time, application forms), Council policies, media releases, publications, and links to other arts-related sites.

Advertising and Market Research

The Council uses print advertising for the notification of closing dates, the introduction of new programs, and invitations to potential applicants to meet with Council/Board/Fund members and staff at forums and briefings.

During 1996-97, advertisements announcing the 1997 grant closing dates were run in nine major metropolitan daily newspapers, as well as two Indigenous and ten non-English speaking community newspapers. National coverage was given to announce the availability of the new Grants Handbook. Expenditure on such advertising totalled $158,603 for the year. No creative or campaign advertising was undertaken.

The use of mailing houses is limited to the distribution to applicants, the media and the public of newsletters, the Grants Handbook, research reports and other information on Council activities. Expenditure on these services, excluding postage, was $11,801 for the year under review.

The Corporate Services Division provides administrative and operational support to the Australia Council and its staff.

The Australia Council is responsible for its own administration, subject to the Australia Council Act 1975 and requirements applying generally to statutory authorities.

The Division is responsible for the development and administration of an efficient system of financial planning and control, the fair and effective management of human resources, information technology, and the accounts, records and physical resources of the Australia Council.

FINANCE AND SERVICES

Finance and Services provides advice to Council on financial policy and procedures and the optimal use of its financial and physical resources. It comprises two major areas: Finance and Central Records.

Finance

The Australia Council's main source of funds is its annual appropriation from the Commonwealth Government, as advised in the Budget, and covers both support for the arts and administration. The Council's secondary source of funds is from miscellaneous income – returned funds from prior year grants, interest earnings, proceeds of sale of publications, and special purposes grants. These totalled $1.9 million in 1996-97. All miscellaneous income (excluding interest earned) is returned to the relevant Board, Fund or Division. Interest revenue is allocated by Council as it sees fit.

1996-97 was the second year of the Council's rolling triennial funding arrangements. These arrangements enable the Council to operate in an atmosphere of stability and predictability, and to make continuing commitments to a larger number of artists and arts organisations. With a greater knowledge of future funding levels, artists and arts organisations are in a better position to undertake more accurate forward planning and to enter into longer-term and more efficient financial commitments.

Of the allocation of $63.8 million appropriated from the Federal Budget in 1996-97, $55.5 million (87 per cent) was used for direct financial support for arts activities, and the balance of $8.3 million (13 per cent) was used for other support for arts activities, administration and general purposes.

An analysis of support for arts activities is given in the statistical tables at the end of this report. The Council strives for sound financial management and practices, and effective and efficient use of resources. Financial control systems and procedures are constantly reviewed. Financial performance is regularly monitored.

The Finance Section also liaises with internal and external auditors, and contributes to ministerial correspondence. It reviews and develops financial procedures, monitors controlling legislation and regulations, and keeps Council staff informed on procedures adopted by Council.

Internal and External Scrutiny

KPMG Chartered Accountants were retained as internal auditors for the year under review. In light of the new organisational and staffing structure, the audit programs were reviewed early in July 1996. Three audit examinations on disbursement, receipts, grant administration and computer systems in accordance with the revised audit programs, were undertaken during the year. The audit findings confirmed that Council's internal controls were effective and satisfactory.

The accounts and records of the financial transactions of the Council and the records relating to assets of the Council were inspected and audited by the Australian National Audit Office, in pursuance of section 39(1) of the Australia Council Act. The results of the inspection and audit were satisfactory.

Central Records

As the Council's central information area, Central Records:

- registers details of grant applications in the database;
- manages the safe handling, movement, retrieval, storage and disposal of documents and records related to grant application, assessment, decision and acquittal processes, and policy and administration;
- implements a program of cyclical maintenance to ensure that records are ready for reference as and when required, and that surplus or unwanted material is disposed of in accordance with the Archives Act;
- ensures that the right information arrives in the right hands at the right time.

During the 1996-97 year, Central Records Section registered and created 6,787 grant applications and related files, and 1,538 non-grant files. It also registered over 1,570 grant acquittals.

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

The principal functions of the Information Technology Section are to obtain, maintain, upgrade and assist with all matters relevant to the Council's computer and related software systems, and to provide Council and its staff with access to appropriate management information systems.

Major tasks accomplished by Information Technology in 1996-97 include:

- upgrading the memory and CPU power of the Council's workstations so that they are capable of running more complex database applications. This led to improved stability and performance of other core applications such as Microsoft Exchange email software and various other databases, and also improved the Council's ability to upgrade to new systems as required;

- implementation of a Remote Access System so that executives and other relevant staff have access to email and other computerised information while travelling or working outside Council premises;
- modification to the Registry (grants administration) system, particularly in relation to program descriptions, summary reports and statistical coding;
- enhancements to the OpenPlus finance system to improve integration with the Registry system and report consolidation;
- upgrading of the Library workstations and databases.

Work was also carried out on two major ongoing projects:

- the development of a centralised mailing database for the Council;
- a review of the grants administration/registry system.

HUMAN RESOURCES

Under its own determination, the Council engages staff in accordance with the Australia Council Act. Terms and conditions of employment for Council staff have to date been similar to those for staff employed under the Public Service Act.

The objectives of the Human Resources Section are to maintain effective personnel, pay and recruitment systems for the Council and staff; to provide developmental opportunities for staff in line with corporate and individual goals; and to support and promote a safe and healthy work environment with sound principles of industrial democracy and equal opportunity.

The major issues dealt with in 1996-97 include implementation of the Council's staffing restructure, assessment of changes to the public service through the review of the Public Service Act, and changes to the industrial relations framework through the Government's Workplace Relations Act.

Following the review of Council in 1996 and the creation of four Divisions, a major staffing restructure was undertaken. This was in response to the demands of the new organisational structure and the need to make further savings in line with Budget cuts. The staffing structure was agreed to by management, staff and the union on 18 December 1996 and the priority through early 1997 has been the placement of excess staff, and advertising and filling of vacant positions.

Council's agreed establishment level following the restructure was 118 positions. Senior executive positions were reduced from seven to five. The average staffing level for the 1996-97 year was 117. Permanent staff turnover for the year was 17 per cent, in comparison to the previous financial year of 24 per cent.

Workplace Relations

A Joint Consultative Council (JCC) works to foster good working relationships between staff and management. It has equal representation of union and management and meets quarterly. Consultation occurred on a wide range of topics, including staffing, equal employment opportunity, occupational health and safety, and general human resource issues.

Council's Workplace Bargaining Agreement 1995-96 continues in force until a new agreement is negotiated. The Agreement included changes to employment conditions which focus on more 'family friendly' work practices and three staggered pay increases, with the final increase of two per cent implemented from October 1996.

With the introduction of the Workplace Relations Act in early 1997, Council has been reviewing how to proceed in developing a new Agreement and will begin negotiations with staff during the latter part of 1997.

Performance Appraisal

Performance pay was paid for Senior Executive staff and the General Manager during the financial year for the appraisal cycle 1995-96. Under the terms of Council's Workplace Agreement, Senior Officers did not receive performance pay. A total of six staff, including the General Manager, were eligible for performance pay and an aggregate amount of $26,053 was paid.

Staff Development and Training

The Council has continued to show a firm commitment to staff development and has spent three per cent of its annual payroll on eligible training expenses. This resulted in a total of 384 staff days attendance at both internal and external training courses. In particular, Council supported an extensive change management program this year to assist staff in managing the restructure in a productive and positive manner. Council continues to provide a strong induction program and in-house computer training for new staff. In response to an increasing demand during the year Internet training was introduced. The other major training initiatives for the year were in the areas of media and public presentation and corporate planning.

Council recognises the benefits to the organisation in supporting staff in their career development and in 1997 approved 17 staff under its studies assistance program through a mixture of approved study leave and financial assistance. In addition, nine students were supported under Council's Bursary program. The Council continues to support one senior staff member from the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Section on a full time ATSIC Professional Study Grant program.

Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO)

The EEO Committee comprises representatives from management, staff and the union, and includes an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander representative, a multicultural representative, and the Council's EEO coordinator.

The Council has again exceeded the APS-wide Year 2000 goals for employment of EEO targeted groups:

- women comprise 70 per cent of Council staff and numbers are evenly distributed in all sections and at all classifications;
- 17 per cent of staff identified as having non-English speaking backgrounds;
- 8 per cent of staff identified as being Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islanders;
- 5 per cent of staff identified as having a disability.

Occupational Health and Safety (OH&S)

Council is committed to providing a safe and healthy working environment for staff through its OH&S policy. The OH&S Committee, which includes the OH&S representative, has an adviser from the Property Services area and management representation. The Committee takes responsibility for reporting to the JCC and for ensuring that staff have a forum to voice concerns and identify potential hazards.

To ensure that safe practices are observed by staff, the OH&S Committee arranges regular OH&S site inspections and during the year Council has responded to concerns about dust particles in the building by testing for lead levels. Test results indicated no significant uptake of lead caused by dust but as a precautionary measure new cleaning practices were introduced. All staff receive full ergonomic training with individual assessments on a needs basis and supervisors have received OH&S training to ensure they meet their responsibilities under the legislation.

As part of Council's ongoing commitment to staff services, all staff have access to an Employee Assistance Program and are offered free, confidential counselling on a range of personal and work-related issues.

NOTES TO AND FORMING PART OF THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

For the year ended 30 June 1997

1. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

1(a) Basis of accounting

The financial statements are a general purpose financial report.

They have been prepared in accordance with:

- the Guidelines titled Financial Statements of Commonwealth Authorities issued by the Minister for Finance in July 1997 (the 'Guidelines') which require that the financial statements are prepared
 - in compliance with Australian Accounting Standards and Accounting Guidance Releases issued by the Australian Accounting Research Foundation, and
 - having regard to Statements of Accounting Concepts; and
- the Consensus Views of the Urgent Issues Group.

The financial statements have been prepared on an accrual basis and are in accordance with historical cost convention, except for certain assets which, as noted, are at valuation. Except where stated, no allowance is made for the effect of changing prices on the results or on the financial position.

1(b) Taxation

The Australia Council is exempt from all forms of taxation except fringe benefits tax.

1(c) Property, plant and equipment

Assets, other than land and buildings are recognised initially at cost in the Statement of Assets and Liabilities. Except for musical instruments and works of art, the Council adopts the policy of expensing all capital assets under $2 000 in the year of purchase. The $2 000 threshold was selected because it facilitates efficient asset management and recording without materially affecting asset values recognised.

From 1996-97 onwards, the Guidelines require that property, plant and equipment be progressively revalued in accordance with the 'deprival' method of valuation (as set out in the Guidelines on Accounting Policy for Valuation of Assets of Government Trading Enterprises) by 1 July 1999 and thereafter be revalued progressively on that basis every three years.

The Council is implementing its progressive revaluations as follows:

- freehold land and buildings will continue to be revalued progressively every three years. The current progressive revaluation commenced in 1991-92;
- leasehold improvements, plant and equipment will be initially revalued over the financial years 1997-98 and 1998-99, and thereafter over successive three-year periods. (The previous policy was to carry these assets on the basis of the value recognised on acquisition.)

NOTES TO AND FORMING PART OF THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

For the year ended 30 June 1997

1(c) Property, plant and equipment (contd)

Assets in each class acquired after the commencement of the progressive revaluation cycle will be reported on the basis of the value initially recognised on acquisition for the duration of the progressive revaluation then in progress.

The financial effect of the move to progressive revaluations is that the carrying amounts of assets will reflect current values and that depreciation charges will reflect the current cost of the service potential consumed in each period.

The application of the deprival method by the Council values its land at its current market buying price and its other assets at their depreciated replacement cost. Any assets which would not be replaced or are surplus to requirements are valued at net realisable value; at 30 June 1997, there were no assets in this situation.

The carrying amounts of non-current assets of the Council have been reviewed to determine whether they are in excess of their recoverable amounts. In assessing recoverable amounts, the relevant cash flows have not been discounted to their present value.

Buildings and motor vehicles are depreciated over their estimated useful life on a straight line basis. Office equipment, computers, and furniture are depreciated over their estimated useful life on a reducing balance basis. Leasehold improvements and leasehold property are amortised over the life of the leases concerned or their estimated useful life, whichever is shorter. Land, musical instruments and works of art are not depreciated.

1(d) Liability for Employee Entitlements

The liability for employee entitlements encompasses provisions for annual leave and long service leave. No provision has been made for sick leave as all sick leave is non-vesting and the average sick leave taken by employees is less than the annual entitlement for sick leave.

The provision for annual leave reflects the value of total annual leave entitlements of all employees at 30 June 1997 and is recognised at its nominal value.

The liability for long service leave, provided for all employees after three and a half years eligible service, is recognised and measured at the present value of the estimated future cash flows to be made in respect of all employees at 30 June 1997. In determining the present value of the liability, attrition rates and pay increases through promotion and inflation have been taken into account.

Provision is also made for separation and redundancy payments in circumstances where the Council has formally identified positions as excess to requirements and a reliable estimate of the amount of the payments can be determined.

NOTES TO AND FORMING PART OF THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

For the year ended 30 June 1997

1(e) Leases

Operating lease payments are charged to the Operating Statement on a basis which is representative of the pattern of benefits derived from the leased assets. The net present value of future net outlays in respect of surplus space under non-cancellable lease agreements is expensed in the period in which the space becomes surplus.

1(f) Cash

For the purpose of the Statement of Cash Flows, cash includes deposits held at call with a bank and investments in money market instruments.

1(g) Resources Received Free of Charge

Resources received free of charge are recognised as revenues in the Operating Statement where their fair value can be reliably measured. Use of the resources is recognised as an expense, or, where there is a long term benefit, an asset is recognised.

1(h) Comparative figures

Where necessary, comparative figures have been adjusted to conform with changes in presentation in these financial statements.

1(i) Changes in accounting policies

Changes in accounting policy have been identified in this note under their appropriate headings.

2. SEGMENT REPORTING

The Council's major function is the promotion of the arts, predominantly within Australia.

3. ECONOMIC DEPENDENCY

The Council is dependent on appropriations from Parliament to carry out its normal activities.

Other	60 138	57 570
Total employee expenses	6 531 860	6 402 465

Employee expenses include employee remuneration and employee related costs, eg. workers' compensation premiums. 'Remuneration' means any money, consideration or benefit (eg. salary, leave, superannuation, costs of private use of motor vehicles, housing, allowances and fringe benefits tax included in remuneration agreements) but does not include payments or reimbursements of out-of-pocket expenses.

The Australia Council is an approved authority for the purposes of the Superannuation Act 1976, the Superannuation (Productivity Benefit) Act 1988, and the Superannuation Act 1990. This enables Council eligible employees to become members of the Commonwealth Superannuation Scheme or the Public Sector Superannuation Scheme. Occupational Superannuation benefits have, since 1 July 1991, been incorporated into these two schemes. The Council satisfies its superannuation commitments on a pay-as-you-go basis, by making periodic payment of amounts expressed as a percentage of the salaries of eligible employees, estimated by the Commonwealth Superannuation Administration to be sufficient to meet the Council's share of the full accrued cost of benefits.

Superannuation benefits for qualified employees for the purpose of the Superannuation Guarantee (Administration) Act 1992 are paid to the Australian Government Employees Trust or to a complying fund as selected by these employees.

Total employer's contributions made by the Council during the year were:

PARTICULARS OF ORGANISATION

Information required to be published in the annual report by Section 8 of the Freedom of Information Act 1982 (the FOI Act) is contained in the body of this report as well as in this appendix.

POWERS

Under Section 6 of the Australia Council Act 1975, the Council has the power to do all things that are necessary or convenient to be done in connection with the performance of its functions and, in particular, has power:

- (a) to enter into contracts;
- (b) to erect buildings;
- (c) to occupy, use and control any land or building owned or held under lease by Australia and made available for the purposes of the Council;
- (d) to acquire, hold and dispose of real or personal property;
- (e) to accept gifts, devises and bequests made to the Council, whether on trust or otherwise, and to act as trustee of moneys or other property vested in the Council upon trust;
- (f) to make grants or loans of money, and to provide scholarships or other benefits, on such conditions as it thinks fit;
- (g) to cooperate with the States and local governing bodies and with other persons and organisations concerned with the arts; and
- (h) to do anything incidental to any of its powers.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR OUTSIDE MEMBERSHIP OF COUNCIL, FUNDS/BOARD AND COMMITTEES

The Chair of Council is appointed by the Governor-General on recommendation of the Minister for Communications and the Arts. All other Councillors are appointed by the Minister. The Council consists of up to 14 part-time members, including the Chair and Deputy Chair, Chairs of each Board/Funds (except the New Media Arts Fund, which was established as a Committee of Council and its members are not appointed by the Minister), arts practitioners and community representatives. The General Manager is a member of the Council ex officio. Members of the Council meet four to five times per year. Meetings are also held by teleconference as the need arises. The Act allows for the appointment of either a full-time or part-time Chair.

There are eight seven-member Funds – Community Cultural Development, Dance, Literature, Major Organisations, Music, New Media Arts, Theatre and Visual Arts/Craft – and a nine-member Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Arts Board. Board/Fund members are appointed for periods of between one and four years, generally three. Board/Funds usually meet between two and four times per year.

Under Section 7 of the Australia Council Act, the Council has delegated the power to make grants to the relevant Board/Funds, within the framework of Council's priorities, policies and budget allocations. The majority of Board/Fund members are practising artists or have practised in the arts. They bring to the Board/Funds first-hand knowledge of the particular requirements of the artform or the specific discipline as well as a collective national overview. They participate in Fund or Board meetings by providing expert advice on the assessment of grant applications and the development of artform policy. The expertise of Board/Fund members is augmented by advisers drawn from the Register of Peers. The concept of peer group assessment within the Board/Funds is a principle of Council.

Other procedures for public consultation are used at different times by the Board/Funds and Council. For example:

- public meetings held in various centres, both metropolitan and regional, generally in conjunction with Council and Board/Fund meetings;
- public meetings held by Board/Fund managers and other senior members of staff, either independently or in association with other arts organisations;
- discussion groups or seminars held with invited members of the public;
- draft discussion papers circulated for comment;
- 'open interviews' held where Board/Fund staff are interstate and available to meet current and prospective applicants;
- regular meetings held between senior Australia Council officers and officers of State/Territory arts authorities;
- continuing liaison between government departments and authorities (Commonwealth, State/Territory and local) as well as overseas agencies;
- inviting views from the public when submissions are being prepared on topics of particular interest to the arts community.

ARCHIVAL FILMS

The Australia Council's archival film program progressed during the year with an emphasis on preparing existing films in the archive for distribution rather than on conducting new interviews. The result is the imminent release of three new series of archival films in partnership with the Australian Film Institute (AFI) and the preparation of a further fifteen films for future distribution. The partnership with the AFI greatly increases accessibility to the archive for schools, universities, local libraries and independent filmmakers. Formerly the archive was only available via the National Film and Sound Archive (NFSA). Master copies of all archival films continue to be lodged with the NFSA; to date, one hundred and sixty two films have been recorded.

For further information about the Australia Council's archival film program, telephone the Library on (02) 9950 9183 or toll-free (1800) 226 912.
