No Fixed Address

2017 – 2020

No Fixed Address was a project developed by DADAA in partnership with and a group of Perth-based contemporary artists and filmmakers. Centred in Fremantle's East End, an area currently undergoing mass gentrification, is St. Patrick's Community Support Centre, which for the past 40 years has worked to support those who are experiencing homelessness or at risk of becoming homeless.

This project explored ideas of resilience, precarity and survival, and attempted to intervene in and respond to the social and built environments of Fremantle's East End.

Across 2019, artists Janet Carter, Olga Cironis, Hannan Jones, Tanya Lee, Lincoln MacKinnon, Mike Moshos, and Susan Roux produced a series of workshops, artworks, films, and installations in response to and in collaboration with the staff and community of St Pat's. These outcomes came together as public events, site specific installations, and an exhibition at the DADAA Gallery in Fremantle in late 2019.

No Fixed Address built on DADAA and International Art Space's Field of the Unwanted project, contributing to a growing body of projects, digital works and installations that result in new narratives from and with the diverse communities that inhabit this radically changing part of Fremantle.
