

The Final Word

Two Poems By Gail Louise

I remember
Way back when
We decided
To be friends

As our friendship
Grew and grew
So the self confidence
In each other too

Our friendship is now
An important part
That fills our lives
And our hearts

Trying to teach
An old dog new tricks.
Thrown a new bone,
Or a new stick.

An old dog
Is not up to new tricks,
Or behaving as you see fit.

Let me tell you
So you realise today
That an old dog
Won't change his ways

Just remember,
Even though he thinks
He is right.
That his bark
Will be greater
Than his bite.

Accessible Arts Notice: One Heart One World Apology to Artists

In the last edition of ACE Magazine, on page 15 of the 2000 Annual Report, the artists whose poems and artworks were part of the One Heart One World exhibition were listed. Unfortunately the list was not complete and some artist's names were not included.

A full list of the participating artists is published below. Accessible Arts apologises for this oversight.

Katherine Annear
Suzanna Apap
Rebecca Clark
Vern Cork
Michael Crane
Kim Creighton
Ken Done
Michele Fehlberg
David King
Gary Lang
Tori de Mestre
Wayne Miles
Reg Mombassa
Leah Thiry
Bruce Tindale
David Serisier
John Terry
William A Tyler
William Yang
Wart